SUMMARY.

The violent artillery fire in the Ypres sector for some days past preceded a British assault on an important scale.

The British captured all their objectives, and have advanced a mile at one point. Our casualties were not heavy.

Field-Marshal Haig reports: We attacked on Thursday morning on an eight-mile front, east of Ypres.

"Great success attended the operations of our troops." The despatch continues: "Positions of considerable military importance have been won."

The first objectives were captured at an early hour, including a number of concreted strong points and fortified farms.

The Australians were selected as storm troops. They stormed Glencorse Wood and Nonneboschen.

The North Country troops and the Australian battalions in the centre penetrated positions to a depth of over a mile.

They captured the whole of their objectives, including the hamlet of Veldhoek and the western portion of Polygon Wood.

Further north Zevenkot was captured, and the London and Highland Territorials carried a second line of farms.

The weather cleared during the morning, and the aeroplanes were able to take an active part in the battle.

German counter-attacks were broken up, and others were repulsed by the infantry. The prisoners taken exceed 2000.

Mr. Percival Phillips telegraphs that the battle is of the greatest intensity between St. Julien and the Hollebeke, where the greatest gains were secured.

"It is a complete triumph," he proceeds, "for the infantry, which never attacked with more determination."

"The enemy's faith in concrete has been broken by the weight of the British shellfire," the despatch adds.

The result of the day's struggle is that the British line has been placed on better ground beyond the barriers confronting them.

Fighting is in progress around and beyond the high ground on either side of the Zonnebeke-Langemarck road.

The "Morning Post" states that a series of strong positions was captured.

We advanced a mile, and reached Zonnebeke, it adds. "The infantry are fighting triumphantly.

Mr. Philip Gibbs states that the attack on Veldhoek, Polygon, and Glencorse Woods was carried out with clock-work precision.

In the final stages the British swept over all obstacles with scarcely a check.

Reports have reached New York that the British have reached the Zonnebeke-Gheluvelt line, due east of Ypres.

A German official report states: A battle is in full swing on the English front, extending from Langemarck to Hollebeke.

"There has been bitter fluctuating fighting all day long," the message adds, "on the foremost part of our defensive zone."

After a violent bombardment the Germans attacked the French south-east of Cerny.

They were stopped by the French fire, and did not succeed in reaching the French lines.

An impression is prevalent in Petrograd that something is being hidden.

M. Korensky, since the proclamation of a Republic, has been following a mysterious, but definite, aim.

There is said to be a possibility that he will be proclaimed president of the Russian Republic.

A Russian official message says: We drove back, with great losses, an enemy offensive in the direction of Riga.

It is believed Germany is planning to deliver a quick stroke with the Baltic fleet against the Russians before the ice forms.

The Russian Ambassador in Washington has pledged America that Russia would continue the war until German autocracy was crushed.

A high naval authority states that new defensive measures against submarines are meeting with success.

Though no sensational inventions need be expected, it is remarked, submarinings have been definitely defeated.

The Federal Recruiting Committee has formulated a number of recommendations designed to stimulate recruiting.

The general effect of the recommendations is to increase the pay of soldiers, and of allowances to dependants.

Professor Macintyre appeals to local recruiting committees to do their utmost to secure reinforcements.

The weekly quota for this State was almost reached in July, but the average of late, he says, has been only 231.

Judge Rolin has cancelled the registration of the Amalgamated Coachmakers, Railway Car, Waggon-makers, and Wheelwrights' Society.

Nearly £100,000 has been lost in wages to the South Coast mining district as a result of the strike.

An impression is said to prevail among the South Coast miners that the coal strike will soon be over.

Mr. Hughes has received a telegram from Mr. Fuller, stating that a conference with the coalminers was being considered.

It is reported that additional coal mines will be worked under Government control next week.

The despatch of volunteer labour to selected collieries is still going on.

Consumers are to be allowed to use gas until 1 p.m. to-morrow, to provide for Sunday cooking.

It was moved in the Senate that the regulation giving power to deregister unions be disallowed.

The motion was negatived, after debate, on a party division, by 16 to 9.

The two men charged with the Coledale outrage were further remanded yesterday, Green being still in the hospital.

Abnormally high rates of wages, it is reported, are being paid to butchers and slaughtermen at Darwin.

Some of the men are said to be earning from £30 to £40 a fortnight. Boys earn from £16 to £18 a month.

The Baptist Conference considered a recommendation of the jubilee committee to raise £10,000 for a Baptist college.

The Conference decided upon the creation of a brotherhood.

A further batch of skilled tradesmen is being sent to England as munition workers.

The second reading of the bill to impose a tax on bachelors was moved in the Senate yesterday. The debate was adjourned.

Large numbers of shorn sheep have died in the northern part of the State, as a result of the cold, rainy weather.

It was stated in the Senate that experiments were being made which might lead to the development of the paper industry.

A motor car capsized between Orbost and Delegate. A young woman was killed, and four other persons were injured.

Over 2000 tons of raw sugar are awaiting shipment at Bundaberg. The mills have large quantities in storage.

The Necessary Commodities Commission has fixed the wholesale and retail price of methylated spirits.

It was stated in an official report that some retailers had been making a profit of over 100 per cent.

There was an improved tone in the Real Estate market during the week. Business generally was equal to pre-strike times.

A cable announcement that British freights had been advanced to £10 a ton caused a stir among merchants.

A better business was done in chemicals than for the past two weeks.

The Necessary Commodities Commission had the price of cheese under consideration yesterday.

The President said the Commission would agree to a flat wholesale rate of 11½d per lb.

Forecast.—Fine for the present in the north-east, elsewhere unsettled, with rains, extending generally during the next 48 hours, some thunderstorms.

A SAFIX MILLER WILL MAKE NEXT SUMMER THE BEST TIME YOU EVER HAD. Those who are using the Safix Miller Outboard Motor write us enthusiastically about its simplicity and freedom from trouble in running, its low cost of upkeep, and high speed against strong winds and tides. They seem surprised to find that 2½ H.P. costs much less to run than 6, and that a light skiff can skim over the water much faster than a big boat's hull can be driven through it. The Safix Miller Outboard Motor is built by Marine Motor Mechanics, grown old at their trade, for the Man in the Street, who wants a Boat Motor to get him there quick and without giving trouble. Safix Miller weighs 70lb, with reverse propeller and Dixie H.T. Magneto. 2½ h.p., speed 8 miles. Attachable in a minute. Simple enough to run in 10 minutes. Booklet H. will make you buy one, post free from A. J. DADSON and CO., Box 912, G.P.O., Sydney. Showrooms, J. L. SCOTT, LTD., 80 Hunter-street.

BILLIARDS AT HOME.

HOME BILLIARDS have BECOME a POPULAR EVENING PASTIME, for there is NOTHING to EQUAL a QUIET GAME of BILLIARDS, POOL, or SNOOKER at home, surrounded by the other members of the FAMILY. The BILLIARD TABLES enumerated in this column can also be used as DINING TABLES, and are consequently a GREAT CONVENIENCE. They are MADE THROUGHOUT of the BEST MATERIALS, the SAME AMOUNT of CARE being EXERCISED in their CONSTRUCTION as in the BILLIARD TABLES which do not serve the DUAL purpose. Not only are the BILLIARD TABLES and ACCESSORIES STOCKED at the NEW PALACE EMPORIUM THOROUGHLY RELIABLE, but ECONOMY is ASSURED by the influence of

GREAT INDIAN

RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

Mrs. McCarthy Metzger, 239 Trafalgar-street, Annandale, suffered from Rheumatism on and off for 20 years, was crippled with pain, and suffered terrible agony. Pain in the back of the neck, shoulders, hip, knees, and feet, and the small of the back. Unable to sleep for days together. The sinews of the heel contracted, and the feet became distorted and cramped, and she was unable to walk. Hospital treatment and many advertised remedies had no effect, and it was not until she tried Dr. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY that she obtained relief. Her opinion of this remedy is best told in her own words:—

"I am very pleased, indeed, to be able to testify to the wonderful merits of your Rheumatism cure, for you have been a heaven-sent angel to me. I must thank you for your advice and hope you will be long spared to relieve suffering humanity."

DR. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY has relieved every form of Rheumatism, and is now obtainable with or without Liniment at Anthony Hordern and Sons, Ltd., Brickfield Hill; and Elliott Bros., Wholesale Druggists.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS.

If any reader is a sufferer from this blemish I can cure them. It does not matter how bad the growth is, for I can prove I have removed

FIVE, SIX, SEVEN, AND UP TO

THIRTEEN THOUSAND HAIRS.

These being individual cases, this may seem to many an exaggerated statement, but to women who have tried for possibly six or seven years applications sold as home cures, depilatories, etc., it will be understood. They know that all of these cures have gradually increased the growth from hundreds to thousands, for they remove the tops of the hairs and leave the roots, but I remove what they leave. Of course my treatment has to be given personally, and the expediency depends upon the lady to be treated and her skin. I will give full details, and a

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

MORE LAND, A BETTER LIVING, INCREASED HAPPINESS.

A GREAT AND FAR-REACHING MOVEMENT is attracting the attention of wage-earners—the remarkable development of our outer suburbs.

The acre and half-acre to-day, within easy reach of the office, the store, and the factory, is making it possible for you to live on and enjoy the advantages of a country home, to become a landowner, a producer, away from the noise and bustle of the city streets.

A DELIGHTFUL SUBURBAN AREA, where the rent money can be turned to the purchase of your own land, and the living expenses met by the products raised in the garden, stock pens, and poultry yard, while you

STILL KEEP YOUR EMPLOYMENT IN THE CITY.

Just think quietly over this, and then investigate any of the following that may suit you in price and locality.

INGLEBURN.—Our splendid Estate of Baby Acres is situated just in the right corner for the Little Lander, 5 miles from Ingleburn Station, and 7 miles from Liverpool, with excellent roads leading thereto, through picturesque surroundings, and the land is some class. Rich enough to grow anything—fruit, vegetables, mixed farming, etc., etc., and the position is just right for poultry, too. Exhilarating climate, and farmlets of from 5 to 19 acres may be purchased at the low price of £7 to £11 per acre.

WENTWORTHVILLE.—Here you'll find our glorious Estate named Dorothy Mount, 5 minutes' walk from the Wentworthville Township, which is a suburb of Parramatta. Farmlets on this estate, with charming elevation, commanding glorious views, and superb climate, from 1 to 1½ acre, at £80/10/ per acre. Soil will grow anything, and the rainfall is very good.

Our beautiful "land of promise"—Toongabbie Park Estate—is situated one further on from Dorothy Mount, with a 'bus service from Wentworthville Station, and city water supply along one boundary, with all other conveniences—such as stores, post-office, school, church, etc., on the estate. Farmlets of good rich soil lightly timbered, with pretty creeks, and a delightful outlook, from 1 to 1½ acre, from £55/10/ per acre.

BLACKTOWN.—Don't miss inspecting our fine flourishing Flinthcombe Farmlets, with splendid soil, suitable for all classes of agriculture, and also in an excellent position for the poultry industry. They are from 2 to 2½ acres, at from £30/10/ to £40 per acre. Also two Bungarribee Farms, each 11 acres, at £29/10/ each.

EASTWOOD.—On the Sunning Hill Estate, only 25 minutes from the city, on the Strathfield-Hornsby Line. Fertile Farmlets, with good soil, of 2½ to over 4½ acres, from £80/10/ per acre. On the excellent Eastwood Acres Estate, near to three stations, and close to Dundas School, Town Hall, etc. Blocks of 1¼, 2, and 5 acres, at £120, £125, and £1 /10/ each. Splendid fruit country.

MORRISSETT.—A Model Farm, consisting of 480 acres, 200 of which are of rich black soil, and 280 acres are lightly timbered slopes with good shelter, Flats eminently suitable for lucerne growing, and the slopes for orchards and grazing, etc. Vegetable and Mixed Gardening a speciality. Rainfall of 50 inches per annum. Price, £1800, £250 deposit, with half-yearly payments of £75. Morrissett is on the Newcastle Line, 80 miles from Sydney.

PRACTICAL ECONOMY FOR MOTORISTS.

PALMER CORD TYRES.
PALMER CORD TYRES.

Palmer Cord Tyres do not "run hot" nor generate internal friction. There is no canvas in them. The foundation of rubber-impregnated cords scientifically restrains air pressure without wasting engine power. Thus, by using Palmer Tyres motorists effect a saving of petrol—and in addition the tyres give such wonderful wear under rough conditions that they considerably lessen the annual tyre expenditure.

Practical proofs are plentiful, and will be furnished on request.

HENDERSON FOUR-CYLINDER MOTOR CYCLES.

ANOTHER FAMOUS OVERLAND RECORD—across U.S.A. from Canada to Mexico, 1667 miles (standing to the credit of "Cannon-ball" Baker and his Twin Indian) has just been knocked into a cocked hat by the superlative stamina of the 4-cylinder HENDERSON. The Henderson's time was 71 hours and 25 minutes, breaking Baker's record by 8 hours and 50 minutes. This is the fastest time this 1667 miles of rough, rugged roadways, mountain passes, and grades and sand trails has ever been covered by anything on wheels, and, like the HENDERSON Trans-continental Record (Los Angeles to New York), furnishes further evidence of the super-quality of speed, power, endurance, stamina, and mechanical perfection built into the 4-cylinder HENDERSON.
The HENDERSON "FOUR" now holds every important Overland Record in U.S.A.
The TYRE and PETROL mileage of the HENDERSON stands out on its own.
We are now in our new premises in the heart of "Motor Row" (135-137 Castlereagh-street), and have one of the best-equipped plants in the business.

WINGHAM, 29/8/'17.

Messrs. ROY W. SANDFORD, LTD.

Gentlemen,—Re the "Oakland" Six I purchased from you last February, I have a few remarks to give you which may be of some value to you. I have driven this car now 14,700 miles on the roughest road on the North Coast—the Wingham-Comboyne road. The rise on this road is 2000 feet in 5½ miles, averaging five trips a week, besides other running. I am always loaded, and have had as many as ten passengers, besides luggage and mail hanging all over it.

Up to the present I have had no repairs. I find this car the lightest on petrol I have ever driven or experienced. In fine weather I get two trips to the tin on this rough road, which is 100 miles. During this 14,700 miles I have only had one lot of new tyres on the back. I am still using the front tyres, which are yet real good.

No doubt this little car is a wonder. She is the best hill-climber and most economical on tyres and petrol I have ever known. I am, faithfully yours,

(Sgd.), S. G. MILLER, Mail Contractor, WINGHAM.

PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA.

Mr. Prospect, we are here to sell our own product, and we are very busy doing so. We do not talk enough about other "new" cars to discuss their merits or demerits. Probably most Motor Car Agents have a GOOD PROPOSITION, but we know that we have an EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD ONE here, and we would like to go through it with you and show it to you in detail. You have ideas of your own, Mr. Prospect, regarding cars, and, no matter what we might tell you, will not make a great deal of difference about the other car, but what we can show you is going to make a lot of difference. Don't take any statements about that or the other car—go and inspect them, and when you have finished come in and see the "Paige." WE'LL show you the difference. Most up-to-date cars have the details, but the Paige has many refined details which the other cars do not possess. Let us prove to you that in "The Most Beautiful Car in America" you will get:—

"THE STANDARD OF VALUE AND QUALITY."

Your motor-car, motor-cycle, or motor-lorry taken in part-payment. Half down accepted on all cars. Just a little extra and you get a "Paige." Write for Catalogue. LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY SIR HENRY LUCY.)

The Irish Convention—Did Asquith Know?—The Latest Weddings—Impoverished Landowners—£25,000 for a Raeburn.

WESTMINSTER, July 28.

The Convention to which is committed the great task of finally solving the Irish question, urgently needed in view of the war, met on Wednesday under disheartening circumstances. Born amid encouraging plaudits, it has since the creation of the idea suffered from a succession of incidents that threatened to wreck it before it was fairly launched. Notable amidst hostile influences are the sudden rise and domination at the polls of the Sinn Feiners. They find a fellow-conspirator against the peace and prosperity of their common country in Mr. William O'Brien. That John Redmond and his party should have consented to join the Convention sufficed to inflame his mind with animosity towards it. His latest mischievous efforts have been the writing of a letter to the Irish Press wherein, under cover of protest against the sane provision of privacy in the deliberations of the Convention, he makes a venomous attack upon his former comrade in national politics.

Up to the present time of writing the only hopeful fact is that the Convention has actually met—a circumstance which for some dark days seemed improbable, not to say impossible. Through the centuries what is known as the Irish question flourished on the fact that, whether in its relations with Ireland the British Government strokes or strikes, it is an alien hand. With characteristic insight and courage Lloyd George grappled with this fundamental difficulty by placing the matter directly and, within obvious limits, absolutely in the hands of Irishmen. If they cannot devise means for the salvation of their distraught, and therefore distressful, country the problem must be abandoned as insoluble. At least England will be relieved from imputation of muddling the matter by interposition of an unsympathetic and misunderstanding hand.

It is an interesting question that will probably be answered in memoirs the next generation shall be privileged to read, to what extent were Mr. Asquith and the members of his Government aware of the preparations for war secretly going on in Germany, approaching completion in the summer of 1914? What is known is that almost up to the last moment they were hopeful of success for Sir Edward Grey's painstaking effort to avert war. Whatever may have been the measure of optimistic opinion cherished by Ministers, it is certain that in military and naval home circles it was a commonplace of knowledge that Germany had long been preparing for war with this country, and that it would be sprung upon us by action akin to that of a thief in the night. Conviction on this point was fully shared by Lord Beresford, who, with sailor-like frankness, never missed an opportunity in public or in private to sound the alarm.

Nine years ago a statement was current to the effect that a feature in the ordinary training of German troops was the process of embarking and disembarking, with intention of some day taking a trip to a foreign country. Writing to me on September 15, 1908, Lord Charles, then Commander of the Channel Fleet, said:—"There is no question in the world that the Germans are preparing, and have prepared, a large number of wharfs and a large number of ships, which can be for nothing else but a sudden embarkation. The German danger is a very grave one, and if we go on as we are doing with the fleet we shall certainly have Wilhelm riding down Piccadilly when we least expect it." Fortunately under Mr. M'Kenna's administration of Admiralty affairs, seconded by the First Sea Lord, Admiral Fisher, we did not "go on as we were doing with the fleet." It was appreciably strengthened, and when what Germans three years ago jubilantly referred to as "Der Tag" arrived it was found in commanding position in the North Sea, with the enemy ignominiously sheltering within shore fortifications, its wharfs and transports useless, its perfected practice of embarkation with intent to invade England wasted time.

"Befo' the wah" the London season was habitually brightened by wedding parties assembled at the house of the bride's parents. Invitations were issued conveying convenient notice of the event. A sumptuous repast was spread. The presents were displayed in a room under the observation of two mysterious guests whom nobody seemed to know (not strange, seeing that they were detectives from Scotland Yard), and a brilliant party assembled, eating, drinking, and making merry. These are things of the past. No private invitations to wedding feasts are now sent out. In their place appears in the newspapers austere intimation that "all friends will be welcome at the church."

This has a decidedly chilling effect. At base it is the same thing, the gathering of friends of two families to cheer by their presence a young couple starting upon a new career. But where are the strawberries and cream, the ices, the sandwiches of divers composition, the peaches, the nectarines, and eke the champagne of yester-year? To put it briefly, they are not. The extreme verge of hospitality on such occasions is to-day reached by provision of a mid-afternoon tea arranged on strictly war principles. On the whole the innovation is not a success.

Landowners in Scotland, in addition to reduction of income suffered by all classes of the community, are just now hampered by a special disability. In ordinary times they find it possible largely to contribute to the upkeep of their estates by letting all or part of their shootings and river fishing. At the close of the third year of a devastating war there are no customers either for moor or river.

Time was when the length of the Parliamentary session was governed by approach of the twelfth of August. The House of Commons will this year sit close up to September, if, indeed, the session does not cross its borders. Not a single voice has been raised on behalf of the once "glorious twelfth."

Salmon in the river can look after themselves. It is different with the autumn game on the moor. The birds have already suffered from lack of the painstaking preservation that has occasionally, in a spirit of bitterness, been contrasted with comparative disregard for the physical condition of the cities' waifs and strays. A scarcity and dearness of food have invaded even the sacred precincts of the moors. To this condition will now be added discontinuance of the deadly discipline of shooting. It is estimated that even when peace is restored several seasons must elapse before the moors can be restored to their normal condition.

Few more striking evidences of the wealth in this country have been forthcoming than the prices recently obtained at public sales for objects of art. It is reasonable to suppose that at the present moment, with the price of necessaries of life doubled, with the wealthier class suffering from diminished dividends, their lessened income further reduced by a levy of 5s in the £ for income tax, it would be a bad time to bring costly luxuries to market. On the contrary, in more than one instance, the record of price has been exceeded in the auction rooms. A portrait by Raeburn of that famous Scottish chief, "The Macnab," brought no less than £25,410. It is certain that the painter did not receive for his work the odd hundreds of pounds. At a sale of old armour a German suit, dating back to the middle of the 16th century, fetched £2205. Seventy years ago it was knocked down to the second Marquis of Breadalbane for £103.

Nothing is more remarkable in the history of painting than the rise of Raeburn's value in the picture market. A Scottish painter, his work was almost exclusively disposed of in Scotland. So recently as 25 years ago, his name was as unfamiliar to English buyers as were his works in English private galleries. The first time I saw his pictures was during one of the Midlothian campaigns, when staying with Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson in his home in Fifeshire. These were heirlooms which probably did not cost the forbears of the present Governor-General of Australia more than a hundred pounds apiece. At that time stray Raeburns might have been picked up in Scotland for £200 or £300. It was the late Sir William Agnew, head of the great art dealing firm in Bond-street and Manchester, that brought the Scottish painter into fame after a period of comparative obscurity extending over a century. Merit is all very well in the way of determining the price of a picture. Fashion is an influence even more potent. As was disclosed in a trial in Mr. Justice Darling's Court the other day an American who cheerfully gave a fancy price for a portrait alleged to be by Romney, indignantly declined to hang it in his gallery when the discovery was made that it was by a less famous artist, and its value fell to as many hundred pounds as he had paid thousands.

IRELAND TO-DAY.

THE HOME RULE CONVENTION.

(BY ARTHUR MASON.)

II.

DUBLIN, July 28.

The members of the Convention designed to solve the so long insoluble problem of Irish self-government, came a day or two ago to their first meeting, with no support from a hopeful public opinion, and without very much confidence of their own in a favourable issue. The interest disclosed by Dublin itself was of the mildest. Some of us were within the entrance gates of Trinity College—in the Regent House of which the Convention sits—when the members were assembling. The number of people gathered in College Green outside could scarcely be described either as a crowd or as excited. They were some 200 at the most. They gave no sign of approval or disapproval of the procession of delegates into the place of meeting, and I have heard of no demonstration of any kind, save that of the same afternoon, when Mr. Redmond, as he walked from the college into Sackville-street, was the subject of some hooting by a group of young and not very important Sinn Feiners. The general attitude of Dublin was, in brief, that of a city which saw no reason to disturb itself over an experiment which gave little promise of success, while as to members of the Convention itself, though one could not consult them all, there was opportunity enough to learn that many of them regard the difficulties of the position as too great for hope of agreement.

Many of them—but not all of them. For some with whom we talked, and they are men who are certain to have a large share in the deliberations, are inclined to believe that bitter as the quarrel undoubtedly is, and hopeless of settlement as it may seem to be, the spirit of compromise will somehow disclose itself, and the necessary sacrifices from all sides will somehow be made. And it was that body of opinion rather than the other which was justified by the opening stages of the Convention. For in many quarters it was expected that controversy, violent enough to endanger the whole scheme, would at the outset be aroused by the question of the chairmanship; and to the universal relief, and to the considerable astonishment of most people, Sir Horace Plunkett was unanimously elected to that office.

This was a great first step. It disposed of a difficulty which was as a lion in the path, even of reasonable deliberation of the problem, to say nothing at all of its solution. For, in such a gathering, met for such a purpose, the office of chairman is of the very first importance. The task of its occupant will be exceedingly arduous. It will demand from him the highest qualities. Involved in a maelstrom of discussion which will cover the whole area of the Irish problem and the constitutional problems of other countries also, and will often be discussion, we need not doubt, at the very whitest heat of fervour, he must have knowledge, strength, patience, and tact of the first order, if he is to subdue and hold in check the enthusiasms of the disputants or to have any chance of controlling and ordering their argument towards its needed conclusion. And more than that, for in an Irish Convention, if he were so much as half suspected of a bias this way or that, the influence of a chairman upon its proceedings would instantly be at an end. His breadth of sympathy must be such that he will have contact with all the parties while belonging to none. Such a man, happily, was available in Sir Horace Plunkett. An eminent Irishman, he holds the confidence and esteem of all Irishmen save the most hopelessly irreconcilable. His work for Ireland covers thirty years of effort, which for long has had visible and triumphant result in the great co-operative schemes that were his creation and have meant so much to the agricultural industry. It has been work, too, no less distinguished and no less insistent in the matter of other industrial problems, while the great practical problem of his country has been so handled by him that his fame is established all over Ireland as that of a wise counsellor, a sane investigator, and an honourable, high-souled man. One has had several opportunities in these days of meeting and talking with Sir Horace Plunkett. He was always impressive in his statement of the difficulties of the Irish problem, and always modestly unassuming in respect of his own work upon it; but by other men in other places his praises were loudly sounded and the general esteem of him was made abundantly clear. The election of Sir Horace Plunkett is, therefore, evidence of the Convention's desire to approach its great task in a great way, and warrant of a dispassionate and luminous oversight of its deliberations by a chairman possessed of shrewd and sympathetic grasp of the complexities before it.

The membership of the Convention was decided upon by the Government with a view to as completely representative a gathering as could be had. It includes in its 95 seats some 40 members elected by the County Councils and District Councils all over Ireland, mayors of the cities, leading clergy of all denominations, nominees of the Nationalist, Ulster, and Southern Unionist parties, Irish Peers, and elected representatives of Labour organisations, Chambers of Commerce, etc. In addition, the Government nominated 15 members representing various Irish interests, among whom are several of the highest eminence in Irish affairs. Both the O'Brienites and the Sinn Feiners were invited to send representatives, and both declined to do so. To that extent the Convention undoubtedly lacks fully representative status, for though the O'Brienites are not strong numerically, they posses in their ranks men of admitted importance and ability, while, as to Sinn Fein, it cannot be denied that the absence of a party which, at least for the moment, holds a leading place in Irish affairs, materially affects the authority of the Convention in the eyes of a large public. These are regrettable gaps in the ranks, but apparently they are unavoidable. Mr. O'Brien from the first was opposed to a convention, preferring to its larger range of ideas a small round-table conference, and he was not to be shifted from his position, though his acceptance of the Government's scheme would have pleased everybody concerned, and not least some of the ablest men of his own party. The Sinn Fein attitude is one of open hostility to any settlement of the Irish problem other than its own idea of a settlement. Inasmuch as bitter hatred of England and of everything English, and Ireland's independence and self-governing republic frankly open to offers from the enemies of England, are cardinal features of the Sinn Fein programme, absence of its representatives from a convention which can only succeed by agreement, and will only agree by grace of moderation, will be all to the good—save in so far as Sinn Fein, though it be no more than a passing phase of extremism, commands at the moment an unpleasantly large body of public opinion.

The view most widely held is that the Convention will try to evolve some scheme of self-government for Ireland on Dominion lines, with provincial councils or Parliaments as its leading feature. The hope of its well-wishers is that it will not break down before it evolves at least some practicable compromise in place of the existing antagonisms. If it could offer Ireland an agreed and reasonable Constitution, as created by the Unionists and Nationalists, within its councils, that programme might conceivably be adopted by both Unionists and Nationalists throughout Ireland, with result of defeat of Sinn Fein and its intractable and hopeless extremism. On the other hand, if Nationalists and Unionists within the Convention themselves retain the existing antagonisms, compromise is obviously impossible, and the Convention fails. And remembering this, and though the problem is complex and many-sided, as I was being shown the room in which the delegates met, I looked with more than common interest upon one bench, at which sit together in these days Catholic and Protestant archbishops and bishops and Ulster Presbyterian clergy. If only they would act together as well as sit together—what might not be accomplished!

THE CHURCHES.

DIOCESAN SYNOD.

The Sydney Diocesan Synod, which has been summoned to meet on Monday next, will be preceded by a special service in the Cathedral, at 2.30 p.m., when the Rev. R. B. King will preach the synod sermon. The new Diocesan Church House will be officially opened by the Archbishop at the close of the synod service.

The business to be brought before the synod is of an unusually important character. Ordinances will be introduced, dealing with the Moorebank compensation moneys and the income from St. Andrew's Church and school property; the administration of the Chapter House and the Diocesan Church House; the allocation of the income of the clergy portion of the Moorebank Estate Fund; the number of representation from dioceses to Provincial Synod; the formation of an Ecclesiastical Fire Insurance Fund; and a request from the Church property trustees to take over the trusteeship of St. James's glebe. Sydney. Resolutions dealing with the following matters appear on the business paper:—The opening of the Royal Agricultural Society's Show on Good Friday (Rev. A. A. Yeates); the question of education of candidates for holy orders directly the war ends; and the raising of a peace thanksgiving fund for endowing Moore Theological College. The Archbishop will be asked to request the annual observance of a Sunday as a Children's Sunday, for the purpose of emphasising duty to the young, and especially for urging the support and advancement of Sunday schools.

Archbishop Wright will conduct a confirmation service at St. Andrew's Cathedral this afternoon; to-morrow he will preach at the Cathedral in the morning, and in the evening he will preach at Haberfield. Next week-end he will visit Hawkesbury Agricultural College in connection with the Students' Christian Union.

The Rev. H. D. Salmon, M.A., of the Cambridge Mission Settlement, who is visiting Australia, will speak on behalf of the C.M.S. at the missionary hour of the Sydney Diocesan Synod on Wednesday night.

The Rev. H. Crotty, M.A., will leave next week to conduct services in Adelaide.

Towards the fund for the completion of St. Mary's Cathedral, £7603 has been contributed since the appeal was made by Archbishop Kelly.

The Rev. Fathers J. Taylor and J. McCarthy, of the New Zealand Marist order, concluded a two weeks' mission last Sunday at St. Patrick's, Church Hill.

The Rev. J. E. Carruthers, D.D., president of the Methodist General Conference, is at present engaged in Foreign Mission deputation work on the North Coast district, and during his itinerary the president-general will visit the Kempsey, Gladstone, Nambucca, and Bellinger River circuits.

At a meeting of the board of the Burnside Presbyterian Orphan Homes, it was reported that there were now 150 children in the homes. The foundation stones for No. 6 Home are now being prepared. The hospital will be ready for opening in November. At the same board meeting Mr. F. G. Sargood, who has already done much for the homes, announced his intention of building another house to include a large hall for general purposes. This home is to be Mr. Sargood's gift, in memory of the late Mrs. Sargood.

The management of Scots Church industriously set to work to repair the damage done to the historic building on the occasion of the violent gale. A temporary roof has been constructed, and services will be held as usual to-morrow morning and evening. The Rev. Thos. Tait, who has been seriously ill for the past two months, has entirely recovered, and will occupy the pulpit.

The Sydney City Mission, which had to postpone its annual tea and festival from the 4th inst. owing to the dislocation of the train and tram services, announces that this will be held on Thursday next, at the Town Hall. A monster tea will be held in the basement hall at 5.30, and the festival after in the large hall at 7 p.m., when over 100 young members of the mission physical culture classes will give a display, followed by a good programme by 400 selected children from the various branches. Tableaux and other interesting items will follow.

SOCIAL.

The Mosman War Chest, that very active branch of the parent stem, was visited on Tuesday by Lady Cullen, who expressed herself as much interested in the various activities visible in the depot, which is open on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, at the Masonic Hall, Spit Junction. The branch was only formed a few months ago, but now numbers 294 members under the able presidency of Mrs. Keeling. Apart from great stacks of shirts, Balaclavas, and socks, the members lately have been strenuously engaged in making articles for sale on War Chest Day. On that day there will be stalls at various parts of the suburb, the main activities being concentrated at Spit Junction outside the Town Hall.

The afternoon and evening juvenile parties for the War Chest will be held at Cranbrook to-day. The committee, which is a most influential one, has been working hard for the success of the entertainment, and has sold enough tickets to ensure success. The afternoon party will present a programme of dancing, games, shutes, and other delights for the younger children; a ticket for the evening party admits to this one likewise. For the evening, excellent dance music has been arranged for; there will be a fortune-teller and other side attractions. The flowers, the only decoration which will afterwards be sold, have been promised by Miss Eadith Walker, Mrs. J. Macarthur Onslow, Miss Macarthur Onslow, Miss Barr, Miss Burnett, and other donors.

The marriage of Edith Ethel Maude Curzon, the eldest surviving daughter of the late Mr. Charles James Curzon, late of Kent, and Mrs. Curzon, of Veraleigh, Bruce-street, Stanmore, with William Benjamin Edye, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Edye, of Orange, took place at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney, on the evening of the 15th inst. The ceremony was performed by the Ven. Archdeacon Martin, of St. Clement's, Marrickville. The bride, who was given away by Mr. J. H. Harris, wore a frock of chiffon satin veiled with ninon and silk net, finished with silver and pink ninon roses and orange blossoms. The court train was trimmed with a true lovers' knot, horseshoe, and orange blossoms. She also wore a wreath and veil of Limerick lace, arranged mob fashion, and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas, which, with a diamond pendant, was the gift of the bridegroom. Miss Amy Andersen, the bridesmaid, was attired in white silk, veiled with white net embroidered with citron and mauve, hat en suite. She carried a quaint basket of daffodils, tastefully finished with citron and mauve ribbons, and wore a gold wristlet watch, the gifts of the bridegroom. Miss Holly Verco acted as train-bearer, and Driver Herbert J. Edye, A.S.C., Liverpool, as best man. The bride's present to the bridegroom was a gold wristlet watch. A reception was afterwards held at Baumann's, presided over by Mr. J. H. Harris. The honeymoon is being spent at the Mountains and Jenolan Caves.

A wedding was solemnised at St. Brigid's, Marrickville, on August 8, when Joseph, son of the late Mr. J. Roberts, of Bega, was married to Lilian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Guilfoyle, of Marrickville, the ceremony being performed by the Very Rev. Fathers Alphonsus C.P., and Gunning, of Bega. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore an ivory crepe de Chine robe, with lace and net veiled with ninon, train finished with satin ribbon and orange blossoms; a net veil and a wreath of orange blossoms completed her toilet. Her bouquet and a silver bag were the bridegroom's gifts. The bride was attended by her sister, Felicitas, and little niece, May, as bridesmaids; her sister wore pale blue crepe de Chine, and a white tulle cap, trimmed with pink bebe roses. Her bouquet of pale pink sweet pea and a bangle were the bridegroom's gifts. Mr. J. Nugent was best man. A reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents.

ENGAGEMENTS.

The engagement is announced between Senior Naval Instructor M. H. Moyes, R.A.N., of the Royal Australian Naval College, Jervis Bay, and Miriam, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. King, Undoona, Albert-road, Strathfield.

The engagement is announced of Miss Clare Dillon, of Candelo, to J. E. Harris, nephew of Colonel Sir Dare Harris, of Kimberley.

The engagement has been announced of May, younger daughter of the Rev. H. H. and Mrs. Crigan, The Rectory, Murrumburrah, N.S.W., and Robert A. Lester, of Murrumburrah, elder son of Mr. J. E. Lester, Cootamundra.

The engagement in London is announced of Miss Jean Amphlett, daughter of Mr. E. A. Amphlett, B.E., of North Sydney, to Lieutenant Harry H. Morell, M.C., son of Mr. J. H. Morell, manager of Bank of Commerce, Bathurst.

The engagement is announced of Eric, second son of George Oakley, of Laurence End, to Nan, youngest daughter of the late P. H. Osborne, of Currandooley, and Mrs. P. H. Osborne, of 23 Milton-place, London, England. The wedding will take place in September, when Miss Osborne's work in France at the Soldiers' Club, Boulogne, will terminate.

REAL ESTATE.

There was a decidedly improved tone in the real estate market this week. Inquiries were good and business generally was quite equal to any period immediately preceding the outbreak of the strike. The general outlook for the summer season is also promising. This was the off week for indoor sales, but quite a number of contracts were signed, and good sales effected by private treaty.

One of the largest deals of the week was effected by Messrs. Hardie and Gorman, when a city property at the corner of York and Wynyard streets was disposed of for £11,850. The building on the land is out of date, and therefore the value is largely in the ground, and this works out at £455 per foot on the York-street frontage. Another big sale yesterday by the same firm was a professional residential property in Macquarie-street, city, for £9000. Messrs. Hardie and Gorman also sold the residence, Renfrew, Ocean-street, Bondi, for £1550, and a brick cottage, Alfred-street, North Sydney, for £1350.

Messrs. Raine and Horne had a busy week. Their sales include a residence, Phillip-street, city, for £3000; a residence at Bowral for £3000; a residence, Woollahra Point, for £2360; a residential site of about an acre at Warrawee, for £850; two allotments at Northbridge, £180; an allotment, Oakes Estate, Dee Why, at 20/ per foot; and an allotment in the Amos Estate, at Bowral, for £40.

This firm will conduct an indoor sale at their rooms next Thursday, when a number of good suburban properties will come under the hammer.

Messrs. Stanton and Son this week disposed of nine properties, as follows:—Brick cottage, Rogers-avenue, Haberfield, for £970; brick cottage, Louden-avenue, Haberfield, for £875; brick cottage, Bland-street, Haberfield, for £920; brick cottage, Norwich-street, Burwood, for £275; 40 feet land Minna-street, Burwood, for £225; brick cottage, Tweedmouth-avenue, Rosebery, for £640; 40 feet land, Harcourt-parade, Rosebery, for £140; brick cottage, Third-avenue, Canterbury, for £695; 467 feet land, Goodland-avenue, Thornleigh, for £883.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench Ltd., held their weekly sale yesterday. There was a good attendance. In addition to a number of racing shares, six properties came under the hammer. The cottage residence at Glebe Point known as Lucasia was sold for £1150. For a terrace of six houses at the Glebe £1200 was refused. The Oddfellows' Hall at Ryde was then submitted, and for this property £250 was bid, but the offer was declined. For the Enfield Park Brick Company's premises at Enfield as a going concern there was bidding up to £5000, but this was much below the reserve, and the property was passed in for private treaty.

During the week the firm disposed of a cottage residence, Addison-road, Manly, for £2250; also a dwelling and vacant land, Cary-street, Randwick, for £850; and three blocks, Pearce's Estate, Baulkham Hills, £141.

Mr. C. H. Crammond this week sold a residence, Cambridge and Merchant streets, Stanmore, for £1475; also a cottage and land, Dryden-street, Campsie, £550; a residence at Coogee, £800; a small farm at Ingleburn, £550; a brick cottage, Station-street, Petersham, £380. The Kendal farm and stock at Wamberal, near Gosford, £401; an allotment, Miller's Estate, Croydon, £130; and three blocks, Millett-street, Hurstville, at 17s per foot.

Mr. H. Pritchard, of Auburn, reports sales for August as follows:—10 blocks, Cabramatta Park Estate, £200; one allotment, Batley Estate, £100; property, Park-road, Auburn, £840; and three allotments at Macquarie Fields.

Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. (Mr. A. T. Carpenter) had a good attendance at their sale on Thursday. A block of land at Burwood was sold for £65; there was good competition for a cottage in England-avenue, Stanmore. The bidding started at £500, and the property was eventually sold for £875. For a block of land at Cronulla Park Estate 37s 6d was refused. During the week the firm sold by private treaty the following properties:—Cottage, Blakesley-street, Chatswood, £1125; cottage, Chelmsford-avenue, Lindfield, £1075; cottage, Bathurst-road, Mount Victoria, £250; block of land, Paradise Estate, Roseville, £230.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., report a fair amount of business for the week. The unsettled weather, however, affected buyers in the matter of inspection. Building sites were the principal areas selected, and the districts chosen were Bellevue Hill, Killara, Granville, and Concord. Farmlets at Toongabbie, Wentworthville, and Bankstown, as well as seaside lots at Woy Woy, also found buyers. Early in October two subdivisions at Bankstown, known as Wattawa Heights and Boronia Park, and a fine property at Bargo, will be offered to the public. The Bargo sale will be on November 10.

Messrs. Batt, Rodd, and Purves included in their sales for the week several large properties as follows:—Cottage, Warrego, Avoca-street, Randwick, £913; residence, Welbeck, Margaret-street, Strathfield, £4725; a large property, Moombara, at Port Hacking, at a satisfactory figure; 214 acres at Bargo, £1083; 15 acres at Campbelltown, £157; 4 lots, Katoomba Golf Links Estate, £185; the cottage, Warrigal, Northcote-street, Rose Bay, £875.

To-day at the Royal Hotel, Moss Vale, Messrs. Chambers and Wallace will submit the farm known as "Lyons," which is situated about 12 miles from Moss Vale. The property contains about 213 acres of well-watered land fronting the Goulburn-road.

Messrs. M'Murdo Bros. sold the following properties during the month at North Sydney: Carrabella-street, four cottages £3350, pair cottages £1230, and a residence £1500. Willoughby-street: Cottage £410. Arthur-street, pair cottages £1300. Total £7790.

Under instructions from the City Council, a number of city investments will come under the hammer in the rooms of Messrs. Richardson and Wrench at a special sale on Monday, October 8. The auctioneers are Messrs. Richardson and Wrench and Messrs. Raine and Horne. The catalogue includes two blocks of land in Cleveland-street, five blocks in Meagher-street, and 11 blocks in Chippen-street. These are splendid sites for factories or business premises. They will be sold on 50 years leases. There will also be submitted a splendid building block fronting Victoria-street, Darlinghurst. This is a freehold, and is suitable for the erection of a block of residential flats. The list also includes freeholds in Flinders and Bourke streets. This land is but a few feet from Oxford-street, and is a centre of much activity. Flinders-street will be 90 feet wide. There are 13 blocks to choose from. On lot one there are five buildings which, with a little outlay, could be brought up to present date premises. This sale will no doubt attract a good deal of attention.

This afternoon Messrs. Raine and Horne will offer the Golf Links estate, at Bellevue Hill. This land which overlooks the Rose Bay golf links, is close to O'Sullivan-road, near the Bundarra tram stop, on the Bellevue Hill-Bondi tram route. It is a subdivision of 32 allotments of fine open building land, with an easterly aspect, well protected from the westerly winds. The sites have many advantages. From most of the allotments there are fine ocean views, and all modern conveniences, such as water, gas, electric light, and sewer are available; and it is convenient to the Bondi surfing. There has been a good inquiry for this land, and the sale will probably prove successful.

A subdivision sale this afternoon for which there has been a good deal of inquiry will take place at North Strathfield-Concord, where Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. will submit the Clermont estate, which is within two minutes of the new railway station, at North Strathfield, and quite convenient to the tram to Burwood. There are 67 choice building sites. This district has made splendid progress of late years, and it has a big future before it.

Next Tuesday, in the rooms of the association, Messrs. Batt, Rodd, and Purves will offer a number of suburban properties, including a superior home at Waverley, in the estate of the late R. S. Lamb. This property is suitable for a home, or institution scholastic, or otherwise.

AFTER-WAR PROBLEMS.

"Already the nation's contribution to the awful holocaust of life and treasure demanded by the war has been appalling, and still the full toll has not been paid. What is to be the gain in return—the gain not to Europe and to civilisation at large, which to most people are mere abstractions, but to ourselves? If the gain is to be equal to the sacrifice, it must surely be in the things wherein we as a people have hitherto been most lacking." These words from Mr. William Harbutt Dawson's introduction to "After-War Problems" give the key to the contents of the book. Mr. Dawson has persuaded a number of publicists to discuss various questions which already clamour for solution, and are certain to become still more urgent on the return of peace. They cover a wide range; they include problems of a spiritual nature, such as the attitude of religion to the affairs of the day, of education, of political development, of practical arrangements in industry and taxation. But they all have this in common, that they are no longer academic. They are matters of immediate national importance. The several authors, moreover, have adopted a common starting point. They assume, as they are entitled to do, that the Allies will be successful, but they have resisted the temptation to hope that victory will in itself be a solution of some of these problems. For instance, a thumping indemnity from the Central Powers would do much to relieve the inevitable financial stringency of the future. But the writers who deal with this subject refrain from taking even the possibility into account, and so it is with the others. We shall have to depend on ourselves. If the fortunes of war bring us some partial recompense in territory or money, it will be all to the good, but will not go far in relieving our burden. It is wiser to rule this factor out from the very beginning.

The first place is given to an essay on "Imperial Federation," by the late Lord Cromer—probably it is the last thing that he ever wrote for publication. Lord Cromer was attracted by the idea, but was thoroughly alive to the practical difficulties attending its realisation. He re-emphasises an argument often used by Mr. Lionel Curtis. "The self-governing Dominions of the Crown have been asked and expected to take part in the greatest war recorded in history without either their responsible rulers or their inhabitants being in any way consulted as to the wisdom of engaging in hostilities, and without being previously furnished with any adequate information in respect to all the circumstances which preceded the declaration of war, and which made it inevitable. They responded nobly and willingly to the call, but will they be prepared to adopt a similar course in the future? Will they continue to acquiesce patiently in a system in which their national destinies, the lives of their inhabitants, and the resources of their treasuries are placed absolutely at the disposal of an authority over whom they can exercise no control, and of whose proceedings they are kept in whole or partial ignorance?" Lord Cromer doubted it. He thinks it essential to the maintenance of the Empire as such that the Dominions should share in the Imperial councils, and if they are to do this at all adequately they must be in a position to watch operations in the whole field of foreign policy in normal times, that is to say, they must hear all that the diplomatists are doing. Lord Cromer sees in this requirement a matter of considerable practical difficulty. He sees further difficulties in the mutual adjustment of tariffs and the principle of representation to be adopted in the Imperial Legislature. Referring to the proposals put forward by Mr. Curtis and his school, he sums the position up in these words:—"It cannot be doubted that the plan is theoretically sound. But is it capable of execution? No answer can be given to this question until the whole scheme is formulated and presented in such detail as to enable all concerned to form a matured opinion as to its merits and demerits." Here is a challenge for the Round Table to take up.

Many of these essays touch incidentally on the relations of capital and labour; two of them, among the most interesting in the book, are solely concerned with this subject. Mr. G. H. Roberts, M.P., discusses it from the standpoint of labour, and Sir Benjamin C. Browne from that of capital. It must be confessed that of the two labour has the more reason to congratulate itself on the convincingness of its champion. Sir Benjamin Browne is chiefly concerned to draw attention to the risks of capital. He points out that it is unfair to take the test of profits in a year or a decade; these must be brought into an average extending over a generation or more, and, judged by this standard, the shipbuilders, shipowners, and engineers of the North of England (the classes on whom he depends in the main for his illustrations) have made no more than a fair return on their capital. The reply, of course, is that labour from its very nature is unable to strike an average over a generation. It must earn its livelihood from week to week; its balance-sheet is not a matter of accountancy, but of the wherewithal to meet the bills of the butcher and the baker. The worker cannot wait till the business begins to pay in order to receive his living wage, nor can he consent to a reduction in his living wage during the lean years. This is the point emphasised by Mr. Roberts in an essay admirable alike for its common-sense and its temperateness. Labour demands and deserves first of all security, and then an increased share of the profits of its work. It knows, at least in its more enlightened sections, that both of these hopes depend for their realisation on labour's willingness to keep the wheels of industry going. This is the condition precedent for security and adequate reward in any form of social organisation—individualism, co-operation, socialism, or syndicalism. You cannot have continuity of employment unless there is continuity in the supply of labour; you cannot have a high scale of wages when industrial dislocations swamp up in a week the normal profits of a year. Mr. Roberts commemorates the "splendid unity" of British capital and labour during the war, a unity which has been marred only by "slight and occasional ripplings of discord." This unity has enabled Britain to put forth war efforts unparalleled in her history. Why, he asks, cannot it be maintained for the hardly less urgent requirements of peace. (Allen and Unwin.)

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

The third volume of the monumental "National History of France," edited by M. Funck Brentano, and now being translated into English, is "The French Revolution," by M. Louis Madelin. The value that the French attach to this volume is shown by the fact that it was crowned by the French Academy, and one can understand why it was honoured by this distinction. M. Madelin has the faculty, not by any means universal amongst historians, of making his work very readable. Too often profound research is the excuse for indulgence in the dry-as-dust method of expression, but this is not the case with M. Madelin. One of the outstanding features of the book is the life and colour with which it is written, qualities particularly apparent in the description of Revolutionary episodes and the delineation of Revolutionary character. So many authors have made the study of the revolution their magnum opus that nowadays the interest lies as much in their point of view as in their material, which is seldom novel save in matters of detail. M. Madelin is a Bonapartist, and his admiration for Bonaparte, who brought strong government to a sorely vexed country, enables him to spare a good deal of sympathy for monarchy in general and for the Bourbons in particular. He strives to be impartial, but his impartiality has a monarchist bias. The revolution overreached itself. Those who called it into being, raised forces which they could not control, suffered the ironic fate of being themselves regarded as reactionaries, and were overthrown. The Republic was doomed by its own excesses:—"Caesar, the inevitable product of past mistakes and crimes, was shortly to lay hands on the State, and to do away with the Republic altogether"—a Republic, adds the author, which had "never at any time, nor to any degree, been desired by the great majority of men on every rung of the social ladder who had brought about the revolution."

"What he nation needed was a very great king at its head," but though Louis was "a generous, pious, liberal-minded man, not by any means the fool he has been commonly supposed to be," he was quite unequal to the situation. He made a fatal mistake in asking help from foreign countries. M. Madelin sees no reason to doubt his patriotism; indeed, he is convinced that Louis would have died rather than give up an inch of France, but his fate was sealed the moment German armies began to mass on the frontier. Meanwhile, as the years went by, the Revolution, which originally aimed at the destruction of vested interests, had begun itself to create them; a host of landowners, for instance, supported the Revolution because their title depended on its confiscations; politicians and public servants had their jobs to defend. "In 1793 a comparatively small knot of men had taken possession of France, of the Revolution, and of the Republic. Now three-fourths of the nation longed to see the Revolution ended, or at least rid of the men who were exploiting it so shamefully; but these last held the unhappy country by a variety of means," among which were the proscriptions and denunciations of the Terror. In 1799 France still wanted what it had wanted in 1789, and this was simply to see the country organised on a firm basis in consonance with the decrees expressed in the Memorials. But an oligarchy had come into existence; it had grown accustomed to power and refused to relinquish it. M. Madelin is inclined to think that the nation would have been willing to recall one of the Bourbons as a constitutional monarch had not the Bourbons already in their irreconcilable blindness made the experiment impossible. As it was, France fell in love in advance with the man who was to deliver her from her intolerable oligarchs. "France was weary of phrases and lies and political orators and blunderers and petty tyrants. All belief in liberty was dead, and men were terrified to see the nation drifting along, its strength exhausted by so many successive crises. There was nothing to be done; all hopes were centred on the advent of a man." The man appeared; he was Napoleon. (Heinemann; Sydney Book Club.)

GALLIPOLI.

"The Immortal Gamble," by A. T. Stewart and C. J. Peshall is a remarkably interesting account of the Gallipoli adventure from the naval point of view. The authors were the acting commander and the chaplain respectively of H.M.S. Cornwallis, which saw more of these operations than any other vessel. She took part in the original preliminary bombardment in February, and sent out landing detachments for various works of demolition; she shared in the ill-fated attempt to force the passage in March; she covered the landing in April on two beaches, including the one where the River Clyde was run aground, and the 29th Division immortalised itself. In the intervals between these deeds, and subsequently, she was employed almost continuously on patrol and reconnaissance duties, and when the newer ships were withdrawn from waters that had become very dangerous, the Cornwallis, belonging to a type distinctly middle-aged, was left behind. She was one of the three that helped in the evacuation, and as she had been the first to arrive on the scene, so she was the last to go. She survived all these perils to fall a victim to an enemy submarine early this year.

The more one reads of the Gallipoli affair the more one realises how little was required to have turned failure into success. The army has declared that if only more men had been available on this, that, or the other occasion all would have gone well. The navy also can claim to have gone close to achieving their goal. The first bombardment might have succeeded had not the supply of ammunition been restricted. As it was, the Cornwallis was rebuked for exceeding her allowance; "the lesson had not been learned that without unlimited ammunition ships are unable to do damage, just as infantry attacks are futile without unlimited artillery preparation." The endeavour to force the Narrows by a "Hussar dash" seems to have been regarded as a very dubious enterprise. "The consensus of naval opinion was that no dash would have prospered except after the demoralising effect of the bombardment of the outer forts on February 26. Had it been feasible to have passed on to the bombardment of the forts at the Narrows immediately, with the expenditure of unlimited ammunition, we might have got through into the Sea of Marmora." The March attack lacked the preliminary bombardment, and failed partly because of this and partly because of the confined space in which the vessels had to work. "Had the Straits been 10 miles wide we should have been in Constantinople long ago. The mines were the real things to fear; we outclassed the Turkish gunnery at all times. They could only hit the ships when they were stopped." But there was no room to manoeuvre; the ships had to move slowly; the minefields prevented approach to the forts, and as long as the forts remained intact the minefields could not be swept.

The authors describe in a most graphic fashion the incidents of an expedition that will rank in history as one of the most extraordinary that has ever been undertaken. It lasted less than 10 months, but in that period ran the gamut of every variety of military and naval sensation. Their chronicle shows a similar variety of interest. Much has been written about the Dardanelles affair, but most of the books have been concerned primarily with the military and not the naval aspect. "The Immortal Gamble" fills a gap in the literature on the subject, and fills it admirably. (A. and C. Black.)

NEW FICTION.

In "Cappy Ricks" Mr. Peter B. Kyne has written one of the most cheerful novels that has come out of America for many a long day. The author shows us the shipping business from both ends—that of the seamen who thresh up and down the world with their cargoes, and that of the owners and brokers who from the safe vantage of the shore control their various destinies. Cappy Ricks himself is a personage who seems true to life—a septuagenarian hard as nails, with tremendous acumen and the conviction that business and sentiment should be in separate water-tight compartments. The San Francisco water front has a huge respect for Cappy Ricks; it is left for a young Easterner, barely out of his teens, to challenge him on his own ground. Matt Peasley is a forthright person, with the physique of a Hercules and the astuteness of a sea lawyer. He engages in the service of Cappy Ricks before the mast, and in the course of the voyage rises to the captaincy, from which lofty position nothing can shake him. When the usual methods fail, Cappy Ricks sends out a fighting skipper to bounce the impertient interloper, but "All Hands and Feet" fails as signally as more orthodox devices. Peasley returns home, and complicates matters by falling in love with the Cappy's daughter. The Cappy has already seen in him the son-in-law of his dreams, but he has a theory that youth should prove itself before its lot falls into lines too easy. Matt has to wait the traditional years in servitude before he wins his bride, and at every turn the Cappy tries to outwit him and to smash him in the rivalry of business. But on each occasion Matt turns up smiling, and crowns his triumph with a shrewd anticipation of the war, which puts many a dollar into the pockets of the firm. It is an excellent yarn. Matt Peasley's adventures in marine finance are only less exciting than those upon the blue water, and Cappy Ricks is always delightful. Mr. Kyne should be heard of again. (H. K. AUGUST REVIEWS.

BISHOP BURY ON THE WAR.

Full of cheerful optimism is an article in the "Nineteenth Century" by Bishop Bury (Bishop for North and Central Europe), who recently visited the Yser front and the camps in Switzerland. He saw the men returned from Germany as prisoners at Chateau d'Oex, Murren and Leysin, where classes of all kinds, handicrafts, trades, and wholesome recreations were going on. The men's accounts of their treatment when prisoners in Germany varied according to the camp in which they had been. Some who had been very badly wounded had received extremely good treatment; some who had been slightly wounded, on the other hand, had been treated with callous neglect. "I was told by some men, for instance, that in one of their camps, where those great dogs were employed, they had been glad to secrete a bone, and, when one of the creatures had just been given its dinner, beguile it away by the attraction of the bone and steal its food for themselves." Setting out from Boulogne for the Belgian front, Bishop Bury found the many hospitals along the way—Canadian, British, Australian—all looking very trim and clean. Later, in a great Red Cross hospital, he dined with Dr. De Page, the Belgian doctor, who has been doing wonderful things in the manufacture of artificial limbs—"far in advance in flexibility and comfort of any I had seen or found described in medical journals." The Bishop had an hour's interview with King Albert, and he came away with an increased conviction that, whatever the Allies have had to do for Belgium, history will assure us that it has been well worth doing. Concluding, he says:—"I have often been accused of writing concerning my war-area experiences in a spirit of 'incurable optimism,' but I am bound to say that feeling increases with me; and as I write these words, I think of what a leading Swiss official said to me the other day: 'All the belligerent Powers are absolutely tired out and war-weary except yourselves, and most of all is this so with your chief enemy, while you British are only just beginning to feel that you are really at war.'"

AUSTRIA'S HOUR OF DESTINY.

Writing in the "Fortnightly Review" for August, "Politicus," a regular contributor to its pages, discusses the present position of Austria. The young Emperor Charles, he says, has clearly indicated that he disapproves of the policy of persecution and intrigue which his predecessor had pursued at Germany's instigation. Notwithstanding Germany's protests, he dismissed those in whom he saw probably not merely Germany's advocates and supporters, but also German agents, and possibly German pensioners. "It seems quite possible that he informed Germany that he would conclude a separate peace unless Germany made a peace on behalf of all her Allies within a brief specified period. Herein lies probably the reason, that the German Emperor, the generals Hindenburg and Ludendorff, Bavarian and other statesmen, have in frantic haste been travelling to and fro between Berlin and Vienna, and that a severe internal crisis has broken out at Berlin. Apparently the Austrian Emperor has convinced the King of Bavaria that Austria and South Germany must, for their own preservation, dissociate themselves from the insane policy pursued by Prussia." But the writer is of opinion that the Austrian Emperor has allowed the hour of destiny to go by unutilised. Had he approached the Allies immediately after his accession, he might have saved the monarchy and the dynasty. A second, and probably the last, opportunity of saving his country and himself occurred when the Russians opened their attack.

WILL THE NAVIES MEET?

Are we to have "a vigorous naval offensive?" Mr. Gerard Fiennes discusses this question in an article in the "Nineteenth Century." The peril of the submarine, he says, can only be disposed of by radical action against German sea power. Unless that can be successfully undertaken the full force of the United States cannot be thrown into the struggle. The United States have joined us in order to vindicate the right of man to go about his business in the great waters. To break the sea power of Germany is to the Americans, as to us, as great an object in the interests of the world's peace as the destruction of her land power. Ideas on this point have, perhaps, hardly crystallised yet, but it seems inevitable, says the writer of the article, that "the sea affair should take on a greater importance than it has yet been seen to assume." He adds: "The hope has been long deferred, but the time of its fulfilment, if the signs can be trusted, is drawing nigh. What will the enemy do? Will he await the attack, or, seeing the forces gathering against him, will he venture on a desperate throw? . . . Meanwhile, it is not likely that the campaign of piracy and murder is raising the moral of the German navy, and it is certainly thinning out the ranks of the Emperor's most experienced officers and men. However the event may be brought about, we can look forward with confidence to a day when the navies will meet, and to the result of that meeting."

THE BAGDAD RAILWAY.

Mr. H. Charles Woods, an authority on the Near East, and the author of "Washed by Four Seas," writes in the "Fortnightly" on the Bagdad railway in its relation to the war. It seems apparent, he says, that neither the Mesopotamia, nor the Syrian campaign is in itself likely in the immediate future to bring about a situation destined to crush Turkey or Germanic power there. As far as the Bagdad line is concerned, two things seem certain—first, that sooner or later it or some other railway from the Bosphorus to the Persian Gulf will be completed; and, secondly, that its ownership and control will depend upon the results of the war, and particularly upon the fate of Turkey. Whatever may be our decision as to the future status of all or various parts of Turkey, we must leave no stone unturned to prevent the conclusion of a peace which would leave the enemy in, or enable him to regain, a predominating control either of the actual Ottoman Government or of an enterprise which, once it is denuded of its political importance, can easily be regularised in such a manner as not to endanger the future interests or safety of Britain or her Allies. Unless we permanently separate Turkey from Germany, the advent of peace will leave us face to face with the danger of a renewed conflict for German domination from Hamburg to the Persian Gulf.

SIR HERBERT TREE.

There is a fine appreciation of the late Sir Herbert Tree in the "Fortnightly." It is written by the editor, Mr. W. L. Courtney, and is in the form of an open letter to an American friend. Tree, he says, was always unexpected, daring, original. He often gave one a shock of surprise, welcome or unwelcome. His acting was "never monotonous, rarely the same from night to night. He mistrusted all talk about technique. 'I have not got technique,' he once said; 'it is a dull thing. It enslaves the imagination.'" Tree produced plays with extreme care for detail and many appeals to the eye. Indeed, it was the care taken over the minutiae which guaranteed the effectiveness of the whole. Thanks in especial to Irving and Tree, London stage-production reached a higher level of completeness and finish than was to be seen in foreign capitals. Probably, says Mr. Courtney, there never was a more beautiful stage picture than Olivia's pleasaunce in "Twelfth Night." Tree's was a fine, courageous, indomitable character; and over and over again, for his delight and the people's, he drew from his intellectual instrument the finest music that Nature had hidden in it, and played it as it should be played.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

The fourth orchestral concert under Mr. Henri Verbrugghen's baton this afternoon will be of prime importance, inasmuch as the Conservatorium choir will sing Bach's "Magnificat in D," generally known as the "Great Magnificat." It will be remembered that the old-time Cantor was nowhere more marvellous than in his church music, his cantatas numbering over 300, two-thirds of which are still extant. He was a great student of Italian forms and rhythms, and in his cantatas, though in effect short oratorios, he made use of every conceivable variety of form and rhythm—the concerto and sonata forms, and even such dance-measures as the jig and the passacaglia being called into use. In the "Magnificat," examples of the great composer's massive splendour of effect in majestic choral writing will be enjoyed. This Hymn of the Virgin was originally performed on Christmas Night, 1723, but not as a continuous whole as it will be presented to-day. It was broken up by a string of Christmas songs. At every pause the thanksgiving of the virgin mother was interrupted by verses of a well-loved hymn, by the "Gloria in Excelsis," or by little songs of a homely simplicity. Although Bach officiated at a Protestant church, and was particularly attached to it, then, as now, many Catholic customs were retained—hence the Latin "Magnificat," and the five masses for which Bach studied and transcribed examples by Lotti and Palestrina, were included amongst his church compositions. The "Magnificat" is written for five-part chorus, with accompaniment of organ, strings, two flutes, two oboes, three trumpets, and drums, and it is probable that a harpsichord was employed. This afternoon a substitute for the last-named, an early pianoforte built in London about 1810, will be used as approximating to the original tone-colour. Solos for sopranos, contralto, tenor, and bass, as well as a duet and a terzetto, are included in the musical scheme. Another beautiful piece of music will be Mozart's "Symphony in G minor," a key in which two of his 41 compositions of that character were placed. It has been said of the one to be heard to-day that it is the most passionate of all, yet the composer never forgot that "music, when expressing horrors, must still be music." Finally, Beethoven's "Leonora No. 3" overture will be performed, the number referring to the order of publication of the three overtures to "Fidelio," of which No. 3 was the second in order of actual composition.

"My admiration for 'General John Regan,' as probably the best humorous play by an Irish author of the 20th century, and for 'The School for Scandal,' as the finest Irish classic of the eighteenth," remarked Mr. Cyril Maude the other evening, "suggested the idea of a few 'Irish nights' at the Criterion. The Screen Scene embraces an entire act in which the leading artists of my company will appear, so that the entertainment practically amounts to a double bill. As regards my own direct share in it, I shall appear in an old character as Sir Peter Teazle, and in a comparatively young one as Dr. Lucius O'Grady. I don't suppose 'the long arm of coincidence,' as your Australian dramatist, Haddon Chambers, termed it, was ever so amazingly illustrated as in connection with these 'Irish nights at the play.' I happened to remark with pride at our first rehearsal that my family originally came from Tipperary, and a delighted murmur ran round the company, which sounded like 'so did we all.' Well, it wasn't quite as bad as that, but amidst much laughter we sorted out the following 'real Irish'—Robert Ayrton and Stephen Scanlan, born in Dublin; Betty Murray, unfairly ahead of everyone, born in Belfast, where 'George Birmingham' came from; Alfred Turner, both grandparents from Killinay, near Dublin; Harry Sweeney, an Australian of Irish parentage. As many people are aware, 'George Birmingham' is really the Rev. J. O. Hannay, M.A., born in Belfast, a Canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin. He was already widely known for the humour of his novels when he launched his first drama, 'Eleanor's Enterprise.' This was about six years ago, at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, but I fancy it did not go very far. About five years ago I read 'General John Regan,' and regarded it as a trump card; but it passed in the shuffle to Charles Hawtrey, who produced it at the Apollo, London (1913), where it had an excellent run. Then again Arnold Daly had it when I reached New York, besides which I was in the hands of the Liebler management, who wanted my own London successes. But 'General John Regan' will afford a very agreeable change, both for myself and my friendly Sydney playgoers."

The writer of "A Woman's Letter," under date London, July 26, remarks:—"At this time of the year the theatre has not much that is new or attractive to offer its patrons. Pieces that have weathered the uncertain playgoing season are drawing into 'last weeks and last nights.' The players take a holiday in some way or other. The younger actors are all in khaki, and it is the turn of the older men, who are cast for quite juvenile leads. We look forward to September for novelties. At the moment His Majesty's has declared no new line of policy. Sir Herbert Tree had let the house to Mr. Oscar Asche, and it seems probable that his tenancy will be prolonged. Chu-Chin-Chow fills the bill adequately, and for the moment it is difficult to produce Shakespearian plays, because they all demand large male casts, so that until peace reigns again we shall have no chance of seeing the classics. In September Mr. Henry Arthur Jones will produce at the St. James's Theatre a drama called 'The Pacific,' and Sir George Alexander being in too delicate a state of health, he has engaged a fine cast to appear in this curiously framed drama. The next excitement is the dramatisation of one of Captain Bairnsfather's pictorial stories as a sketch at the Oxford under the title of 'The Old 'Ole,' with Mr. Arthur Bourchier in the cast, whilst in serious drama I think we must look to Mr. Bourchier and Mr. H. B. Irving as our mainstays; while to Mr. Matheson Lang we look for the romantic side of drama. Just now there is a better chance for provincial drama. Stock companies are formed, and at such a centre as Portsmouth exceedingly brilliant work is being done by Miss Madge Mackintosh and her company of London players. I saw 'Dandy Dick' played there as well as in the days of its infancy. The Beecham Opera Company will reopen in the autumn at Drury Lane. Its following has been so ample, indeed, that opera in English seems to have at last come to stay."

Miss Lillian Mitchell, a lyric soprano who went to England early in the war after a farewell concert at the Town Hall, has since studied there advantageously under Mr. Allen Gill, and has sung at many patriotic concerts, including one at Epsom to over 2000 wounded Canadian soldiers, an engagement secured for her by Madame Clara Butt. Madame Ada Crossley, who has also been of service to this artist, writes that Miss Mitchell was to leave London on July 17 for Sydney. Miss Mitchell herself informs her friends here that she delights in taking wounded Australians for a row on the Thames. She experienced several of the German aeroplane raids, notably during her visit to Ramsgate, on the coast of Kent, and adds: "I really could write a book of my experiences in such tragic times in England."

During the week in Melbourne "Mr. Manhattan" is described as a bright production on typical lines, a light entertainment for which the audience is prepared in advance. The "House that Jack Built" combination provided a clever actor in Arthur Stigant. There was another clever artist, but pronounced unequal to vocal requirements, in Louis Kimball. Ethel Cadman, Carrie Moore, and Oliver Peacock were the singers. Dancing honours were won by Maggie Dickinson.

The second annual South Sydney Hospital Sunday will be held to-morrow, and special services will be held at St. Paul's, Redfern, St. Matthew's, Botany, St. Luke's Mascot, St. Anne's, Kensington, Matraville Church of England, Redfern Congregational Church, Alexandria Congregational Church, Waterloo and Mascot Congregational churches, and the Salvation Army (Redfern and Mascot barracks).

LONESOME HEIGHTS.

When at last they reached the kirkyard the ordeal was at once harder and more easy than he thought. The lane to the church was packed thick on either side for a half-mile. The roomy green God's acre was filled. Not Cringle Dene only had sent its mourners, but Consett, where the weaver-folk had ever loved this Squire who had given shrewd blows, and taken them, in defence of a standpoint not their own.

Jasper glanced right and left, seeing remembered faces through a haze of trouble. He looked through the gate of the big pasture this side the kirkyard, and saw it full of gigs and carriages. And he was here, with his heart afraid as a child's, and his hand reaching out for the grasp of that cold hand they were going soon to bury under snow and sod and earth.

The panic of the moment passed. He was the Squire, meeting another fence; and, as Dick had said, they must take it as it came.

When all was done, and they turned away from the grave, he would have shielded his mother from the ready sympathy that lined their passage; but she smiled at him, a smile of suffering and transfiguration.

"I'm strong to bear praise of him, Jasper," she whispered. "What else could they give him?"

Royd put them into their carriage at the kirk gate, and gripped Jasper's hand with a lustiness that hurt. "You carried it well, lad—carried it well," he said.

Jasper was content to take his word for it. For his part he felt sick and numbed now that he had gone through the battle asked of him. His father's strong hand—the masterful, quick temper, the kindly heart—at one-and-twenty it puzzled him to know why these good things were cold and done with on the sudden, to be left food for worms in the snowy loneliness of Consett kirkyard. He was at war with life, and death, and circumstance.

Hazel, nestling under shelter of her father's bulk, saw the bleak look in Jasper's face; and her shyness left her. She put her father aside, with a hand light as thistle-down, and touched Jasper on the sleeve of the mourning-coat they both hated.

"Oh, it will lift," she said, not knowing whether she sobbed or laughed.

That night Luke Ward kept open house at his carpenter's shop on the brink of Cringle Water. His heartache for the Squire's going was real enough; but his pride in coffin-making for the gentry went back many generations, and would not be denied. The kettle was singing on the hearth, and a little, brown keg of rum lived neighbour to it. And now one praised the dead Squire, and now another; and they wondered how it would go with the new Squire, tied by the leg to a twin who had no thought save for devilment and roaming.

"It will go as it gangs, neighbours," said Hunchback Robbie; "and don't ye be too hard on Master Dick. He's a bit of a lame dog, he, and a bit of a dreamer like myself."

"What are your dreams now, lad Robbie?" asked Luke, awed for a moment by this cripple who looked beyond burials and storm.

"Nay, naught so much. The wild geese came and brought their snow, as I promised ye. They'll come again—but not just yet, Luke. We can all get on with our sup o' rum, and naught to hinder us."

"That's summat to be thankful for. As I was saying, neighbours, me and mine have coffined every squire since the Cunliffes lorded it at the old hall; and that's a tidyish while gone by. I mind, as well as if 'twere yesterday, my father sitting by the hearth, same as we're sitting now, and he telled me what his father had telled him, and so back for a matter of a few hundred years."

"Lord ha' mercy," put in Timothy Wanless; "it sounds like lifting dead men out o' their graves."

"So it is, Tim—and who should have more right than the men who coffined them? I tell ye, I have it snug and pat, as if I'd seen it with my own two eyes—all that tale of Squire Cunliffe in the long ago. They'd found a fox on Scartop Rise, and chased him wide of Consett, and he took them in Cringle Dene. Eh, but ye know the tale by heart."

"Go forrard, Luke. It's the old, stark tales that are the best."

"Well, the fox was game enough, but he hadn't scarce strength left to drag himself down dale. And, when he came to the Hall, and saw the door wide open, like, he just went in, and clambered up the stairway, till he came to the chamber where Squire's lady lay on a bed o' sickness. The hounds were scummering after; and Squire, when he came galloping a furlong o' front of the rest of his merry men, and saw the fox go in, he rode up the stairway on his horse. The Lord knows, neighbours, why ye're asking me to tell an old tale all afresh."

"Get forrard, if it takes the last o' the rum to give thee speech, Luke. Thou'st talking of the man-like times, before Murgatroyd brought mills and knock-kneed folk to Consett yonder."

"Well, he got fro' saddle, did Squire, this side o' the bedroom door, and went in; and he saw my lady standing 'twixt the fox and the hounds that seemed like to worry her. But she stilled 'em, like as it was a miracle; and then she went and broke the window till there was room for red-brush to slip through, and drop to softish earth outside. And Squire stormed and raved at her; for he was hot for chase and blood-letting. 'Why did ye let him through?' said he. 'Because of Christ's pity for the hunted folk,' said she, and took to her bed again, and died that night, the Squire tending her like one who nursed a babby. That's how it comes, neighbours, that he rides with his pack o' hounds, once every little while, and wakes the Dene again. He cannot rest, for thinking how his lady died. Leastways," he broke off, as if ashamed of his tale, "that's how I had it fro' my father, and his fro' his, and so back to the days o' the Riding Squire. There are no ghosts these days, to be sure. We're all too busy to take heed o' that sort o' traffic."

"Not all of us," said the hunchback. "I saw Squire—our Squire, that we laid i' kirkyard mold yonder this very day—when he came home fro' the big fight at Consett. He rode weary, and there was blood about his face; but he stayed for a cheery word. And then I watched him go across the Brigg, and with him was a shadow-Squire, riding a shadow-horse. So then I thanked God that, when his time came, he'd take old Fiddlehead with him. And he has taken the skew-tempered beast. We all know they died at one and the same time."

"Robbie, thou'rt a heathen," said old Aaron piously. "Men have souls to be saved or lost—mostly lost—but horses and such-like go when they go, and no more about it, once you've buried 'em deep enough."

"There thou'rt wrong," said Robbie, his big head carried high because it defended the faith he had learned from body-weakness, and seeing of the fairies, and the far knowledge that pain and hope had taught him. "I had a dog once. He was naught so much to look at—a cross 'twixt a farm-cur and a lurcher—but he had sense enough for three usual, human fools. A man and a dog, living lonesome-like together for ten years and odd, pick up a deal o' knowledge one of t'other."

"I picked up a deal o' knowledge myself," put in Aaron. "I came down for a sitting of eggs ye'd promised me, and ye happened to be out o' doors, so I lifted the door-sneck and popped in to see if ye'd left 'em for me. And the varry first thing I knew was that thy durned dog had me by the leg."

"Right and proper of him, Aaron," said the hunchback, with a laugh that hid all the wrinkles of his face. "Yond dog o' mine let no man in without a by-your-leave from me. If it had been just a man I'd left in charge you might have bribed him—with a sovereign, or a shilling, or a sup of ale—but you can't go bribing a dog like Tinker. That's what I'm trying to find speech for, neighbours. When I was sorry—and that often happens in my queer, mis-shapen life—he'd creep to my side, and push a wet nose into my hand, and let me see the tears in his eyes, because he knew I was too proud to shed 'em for myself."

They listened to this little man, who had carried hardship bravely in their midst since first they pitied him and afterwards began to understand that he had a vision clearer than their own.

"I talk o' what I seem to know, ye big, hale folk. Tinker cried when I was sick and sorry, and he laughed all round his flea-bitten, wrinkled snout when I was merry. He lived for me, did Tinker, and would have died guarding me, if need be."

Robbie's loss was six months old by now, but the keen edge of grief was scarce blunted yet, and he halted till his voice grew firm again for challenge.

"It's this way, as one dreamer sees it," he went on. "The body o' Tinker died—but can ye kill such matters as his ten years' service—asking little, and giving a lot—dozing with one eye half open, like, to see if you're needing him—can ye bury that sort o' lively courage?"

"I reckon not," said Timothy Wanless—"and, as for Squire, he'd never get on at all in t'other world, of course, without old Fiddlehead. They fratched, and they fratched, and neither would own a master—but they were happy with it, like."

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice and a jury of four.)

CLAIM FOR INJURIES.

Welfare v Brignull.

Mr. Hardwick, instructed by Mr. J. B. Moffatt, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Perry, instructed by Mr. R. Thornton, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Albert Welfare, carter, against William Brignull, carrier, to recover compensation for injuries sustained by the plaintiff, and caused, as he contended, by the negligence of defendant's servant while in charge of a horse and dray. The case stated for plaintiff was that on March 14 last he was engaged in driving a three-horse waggon, but at the time of the accident he was sitting on the kerb at Buckle-lane, Pyrmont, having his lunch. A horse and dray belonging to defendant turned into the lane, the vehicle being loaded with ashes. The horse refused to face the hill, and the driver came to its head and tried to get the animal to proceed; but it swerved into the kerb, and trod upon plaintiff's right foot. The injury was sufficient to prevent him from doing any work for five weeks, and, besides suffering considerable pain, he was put to expense for medical attention, and had lost five weeks' wages. Damages were laid at £300. Defendant pleaded not guilty. In cross-examination plaintiff admitted that during his absence from work he received £1 per week from his union benefit society, and other allowances brought the amount up to £2 5s per week.

The jury found for plaintiff with £25 damages. A certificate for costs was refused.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

INJUNCTION MATTER.

Folkes v Spark.

Mr. Collins appeared for the plaintiff, Catherine Folkes, and moved for an order to continue an interim injunction granted by Mr. Justice Harvey against Johanna Spark, to restrain defendant from further proceeding with an ejectment action, which had been set down for trial in the Supreme Court. Mr. Delohery, who appeared for the defendant, asked for another week's adjournment, in order that he might procure additional affidavits. After argument his Honor granted the adjournment asked for, the injunction to be continued during the interval.

A SETTLEMENT.

Attorney-General and another v Allen.

Mr. Bethune, who appeared for the plaintiffs, said that the suit, which had reference to authority to enter upon a mining lease, had been settled, and he asked that it should be dismissed without costs. Mr. Parker appeared for the defendant to consent, and his Honor made the order as asked.

INJUNCTION MOTION DISMISSED.

Spencer's Pictures, Ltd., v Cosens.

On the 14th inst his Honor, on an ex parte application, granted an interim injunction, restraining the defendant, Spencer Cosens (usually known as Cosens Spencer), from accepting a lease of the Lyceum Hall for the purpose of letting or using it for a picture show. Details of the case appeared in last Saturday's "Herald." The plaintiffs, Spencer's Pictures, Limited, Australasian Films, Limited, and Union Theatres, Limited, were represented by Mr. Leverrier, K.C., and Mr. Weston, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell; Mr. Knox, K.C., and Mr. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. Vickery, England, and Wilson, appeared for the defendant, Spencer Cosens.

Yesterday counsel for the plaintiffs moved for the continuance of the injunction. Twelve affidavits in support of the motion were read. Mr. Knox objected to many of the statements in the affidavits, on the ground of their irrelevancy to the material issue—the lease of the Lyceum Hall. His Honor disallowed the objection.

The affidavit of Harry George Musgrove (secretary of the General Film Company of Australasia, Limited) of the 12th inst stated, inter alia, that, by an agreement dated September 18, 1911, between the defendant, therein called the vendor, and one Bragg (on behalf of a company about to be formed styled Spencer's Pictures, Limited), the vendor sold and the company bought the goodwill, plant, films, etc., of the vendor's businesses of "C. Spencer, Spencer's Pictures." The consideration was a certain sum in cash, besides £45,000 also in cash, and 55,000 £1 shares fully paid up in the new company. In the said agreement the defendant covenanted that he would not at any time within 10 years from the date, either solely or jointly, or as manager or agent for any other person, directly or indirectly, carry on, be engaged or interested, in any business similar to the one sold by the vendor, at any place within the Commonwealth of Australia.

The affidavit of William Barrington Miller, general manager, Union Theatres, Limited, covered copies of correspondence in which it was alleged that Mr. Cosens Spencer's offer for the lease of the Lyceum Hall had been accepted by the trustees of that hall. An affidavit by Harrie Skinner, theatrical manager, stated that he was well acquainted with the defendant, who came to him and spoke of taking a lease of the Palace Theatre, mostly for showing pictures, for 10 years, at £100 a week. The defendant told the deponent that he did not want anyone to know that he was negotiating for the Palace Theatre.

The defendant did not file any affidavits in reply. At this stage his Honor asked plaintiff's counsel if there was anything in the agreement that barred the defendant from taking a lease of the Lyceum, say for concerts or revivals. He had not stated that he wanted to use the place for picture showing.

Mr. Leverrier: No; but the restrictive clause of the agreement showed the parties intended that the defendant could not take or give a lease of any place.

Mr. Knox asked that the motion to continue the injunction be dismissed.

Mr. Leverrier contended that the words of the agreement, that the defendant would not directly or indirectly be interested in any similar business, were capable of an extremely wide meaning.

His Honor thought that it would not be a breach if Spencer were going to lease the hall to a perfect stranger. When the restrictive clause was framed it ought to have had a further proviso that, if Spencer did lease any hall, he should not sublet to anyone for a picture show. "I hold," added his Honor, "that, according to my present view, the covenant does not prevent Spencer from taking a lease of the Lyceum premises and letting it to a picture show in which he had no other interest than that of sub-lessor of the premises. I therefore dismiss the motion, with costs against the plaintiffs, including the costs of the ex parte application."

MOUNT BROWN MINE.

Long v Reynolds.

This was a matter in which his Honor had granted an interim injunction restraining T. R. Reynolds and others from dealing with the alleged one-thirtieth interest of the plaintiff, Albert Edward Long, in the Mount Brown mine at Karangi, near Coff's Harbour.

By consent, the injunction was continued till the hearing of the suit.

DIVORCE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

HUGHES v HUGHES.

Argument was concluded in the case of Hughes v Hughes (Sheridan co-respondent), and his Honor reserved judgment.

GUIOT v GUIOT.

The hearing was commenced of the case in which Emile Henri Guiot is suing for divorce from Ruth Florence Guiot (formerly Barnett), on the ground of the latter's alleged misconduct with Robert William Lenehan.

Mr. Alec Thomson and Mr. Markell, instructed by Messrs. Priddle and Josling, appeared for the petitioner; Mr. Hammond and Mr. Davidson, instructed by Mr. J. J. Mulligan, appeared for the respondent; and Mr. Gannon, K.C., and Mr. Collins, instructed by Mr. F. H. Greaves, represented the co-respondent, Colonel Lenehan.

Mr. Thomson, outlining the case, said there was no direct proof of misconduct, but circumstances would be proved that could only lead to one conclusion. Misconduct was alleged to have taken place between December 12, 1914, and March 15, 1917. The petitioner was a wool-buyer, of French nationality, who came to live in Sydney in October, 1904. He first met the respondent in November, 1908. They were married on March 30, 1909, at the Presbyterian Manse, Collingwood (Vic.). The respondent had told Mr. Guiot that she was the daughter of an American lawyer, who was a major, and that she had not been long in Australia. Some time after the marriage, however, the petitioner discovered that there had been some deception with regard to his wife's antecedents, and as the marriage certificate was incorrectly filled in in this respect it was thought advisable to go through the marriage ceremony again, with the same minister, on June 28. Mr. and Mrs. Guiot met Colonel Lenehan, who was a practising solicitor, in 1914, some months before the outbreak of war. In December Mr. Guiot was recalled to France as a reservist, and his wife called on Mr. Lenehan to make arrangements for the sale of certain assets. Mr. Guiot also made arrangements with Mr. Lenehan for an allowance to his wife. Mr. Guiot left Sydney on December 12, and on the day of his departure Mrs. Guiot had been invited to dine with Colonel and Mrs. Lenehan. She told her husband she did not wish to go to dinner with anyone on the day he went away, but evidence would be called to show that on the evening in question she was at dinner with Colonel Lenehan and another gentleman, accompanied by a lady, at Holland House. Lenehan frequently visited her and took her out. She used to address him familiarly as "Kernie" and "Bobbie." The petitioner returned from the war on March 21, 1916. Subsequently he had differences with his wife, owing to her extravagance and neglect of the children, and they separated. Later he returned to her on the understanding that Colonel Lenehan was not to visit the house. It was not till the end of November, 1916, that he had any suspicions as to his wife and Colonel Lenehan.

The petitioner went into the witness-box, and evidence was entered upon.

The case is part heard.

EX-TOWN CLERK CHARGED.

At the Paddington Police Court, before Mr. McKensey, S.M., Edwin Beresford Kenyon, 37, formerly Town Clerk at Waverley, was proceeded against on three charges of stealing. The information set out that defendant, on or about April 11, stole £50; that, on or about May 7, May 16, and July, defendant stole £32 7s 11d, £13 5s 10d, and £15 4s 7d respectively; and that, on or about July 24, he stole £40. All the thefts were alleged to have been committed at Waverley.

Mr. Kershaw (of Messrs. Kershaw, Matthews, and Lane) appeared for the Waverley Council; and Mr. Parker represented defendant.

Lawrence Wilfred Beagley, Town Clerk for the municipality of Waverley, produced certain rate and notice books for the year 1917 for Nelson, Waverley, and portion of Bondi wards. Witness produced a receipt for £50, which was in the handwriting of defendant, but the amount had not been received by the council. Witness produced the rate and valuation book referring to property lots Nos. 9 and 13 Cowper-street, Waverley. The rates on these properties had not been paid according to the council's books. Witness produced certain other receipts, and in each instance alleged that the money had not been paid to the council.

After further evidence defendant, who reserved his defence, was committed for trial, bail being allowed.

WEATHER FORECASTS AND THE NERONG.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—To say the least of it, the forecast issued at 9 p.m. on Tuesday, and which appeared in Wednesday morning's papers, was absurd in the extreme. Was it really impossible for our weather experts to have had knowledge of the approach of the cyclonic storm which broke upon the coast early on Wednesday morning? It is shocking to think that, through apparent ignorance of the approaching storm, the Nerong was allowed to leave the harbour at 9.30 p.m. on Tuesday, to be struck by the terrific gale only four hours later, and with such fatal results. It hardly seems credible that warning could not have been given. I am, etc.,

CLEMENTS TONIC

It tells everyone the value of this splendid medicine for the weak nerves.

"ASTON VILLA,"
9 BEN EDEN-STREET,
WAVERLEY.

CLEMENTS TONIC LTD.

"I have been residing in Bondi Junction for a period of 19 years.

"I am as well-known as an old resident can be. There is not a business man in Bondi whom I do not know, and who does not know me.

"I have filled the important trustworthy position of night watchman to the leading business people of Bondi Junction for 19 years. I am also a special constable at Bondi.

"The position is one that it has a very trying effect on one's nerves at night, and recently I have had grave signs of nervous breakdown and ill-health.

"I tried many remedies and sources of advertised aid trying to get my nerves right, but I failed.

"Clements Tonic was recommended to me by one who had used it and I agreed to try it.

"I took several bottles and am now well. Weak nerves, bad rest by day, poor appetite, are now things of the past.

"I follow my work at night without the slightest nerve tension.

"I recommend it to everyone. I would like to know, too, where there is a better medicine.

I am, Gentlemen,
(Signed) F. W. SIMMONDS.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

A REDUCTION
IN THE PRICE OF "FIBROLITE."
Midst the general whirl of soaring prices it is gratifying to learn that
HARDIE'S AUSTRALIAN-MADE
"FIBROLITE" (Reg.)
ASBESTOS CEMENT SHEETS
have been reduced in price.
The great demand for "Fibrolite," coupled with the saving we make by manufacturing in Australia, and thus avoiding heavy ocean freights, is responsible for this reduction.
And compared with Weatherboard, "Fibrolite" brings still further savings to the builder.
IT COSTS 2-3RDS LESS TO PAINT,
LESS TIMBER FOR STUDDING IS REQUIRED,
INSURANCE IS 25 PER CENT. LESS.
Consider these savings. Remember that "Fibrolite" is absolutely permanent, cannot rust, chip, crack, or burn, and lends itself to beautiful decorative schemes. Consider these facts before you build or alter. Send for Sample and Prices.
Also ask about "FIBROLITE" CORRUGATED ASBESTOS CEMENT ROOFING—the only roofing of the kind made in Australia.
"FIBRO-C" PAINT.—Specially made for use on "Fibrolite" and similar surfaces, 21 shades. Send for Colour Card.
"REXILITE" BRITISH FLAT ROOFING—Ideal for Factories and Seaside Buildings.
"FIBERLIC" BUILDING BOARD.—Made from the long tough fibres of a root. It is cheaper and superior to steel for linings and ceilings.
3-PLY WOOD LININGS.—Make the most attractive finish for interiors. They are economical and durable, and come in a variety of sizes.

AN ASBESTOS BUILDING MATERIAL.
"DURABESTOS."
"DURABESTOS" is the original Australian-made Fibrous-Cement Product, and is the only material of its kind hydraulically compressed—this makes it superior to all others in finish and durability.
"DURABESTOS" is particularly adapted for the construction of Bungalows, Garages, Elevator Shafts, Stairways, Storerooms, Silos, Linings, Roofings, etc.
"DURABESTOS" is fire-resisting, waterproof, fumeproof, and rustproof, white ants won't touch it. It is a non-conductor of heat and cold.
"DURABESTOS" once used will always be used. A high-class building material, moderate in price; it stands alone.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

ASBESTOLITE CEMENT SHEETS.
A point worthy of remembrance in regard to Asbestolite, the popular building material, is the fact that apart from its being manufactured from the world-famed, unequalled Italian Cement and Canadian Asbestos, which is also the world's best, it is thoroughly matured by an atmospheric process before shipment. Asbestolite improves with age; is fire-proof, ant-proof, and will not rot under any conditions.
LOTTOID HARD WALL PLASTER SHEETS, for interior walls and ceilings, have a beautiful, snow-white face, and require no paint or decoration after erection. Price 2/6 per sq. yd.; 3-ply Veneers, Analwud Wall Boards, and Malthoid Roofing also stocked. Write or call for our Illustrated Booklet "H."

OSCILLATING WALL BEDS EFFECT A SAVING IN COST OF BUILDING.
We have exemplified over and over again how considerable money is saved by introducing OSCILLATING PORTAL WALL BEDS in the original structures. People sometimes say that they are not furnishing, and we would like to here point out that our WALL BED is more of a construction saver than it is a piece of furniture. To-day there are thousands of our beds in use throughout Australia, and every one is an advertisement in itself.
In many of the Architects' offices in Sydney to-day there are PLANS WHICH EMBRACE WALL BEDS AS A UNIT of the building. The persons building at the present time without adopting our system are those who have never studied this modern utility; thus they are blind to their own interests, and will seriously affect their clients' investments in the near future.
WORK OUT THE COST OF YOUR FLOOR SPACE with and without OSCILLATING PORTAL WALL BEDS and you will then see the importance of introducing them, not only into flats and hotels, but also the modern villas and bungalows which should be equipped with a WALL BED FOR IN AND OUT DOOR SLEEPING.
If you wish to ascertain the merits of WALL BEDS, write to the Manager of the T. and G. Residential Flats, Sydney, where 135 of our Beds have been in use for over eighteen months.
Call or write to-day for our booklet, which will be forwarded POST FREE on application. DEMONSTRATIONS daily at

ON THE LAND.

BIRDS AT YANCO.

(BY E. M. HAGARTY.)

The last two seasons in Riverina have been so mild and grasses and herbage so plentiful that there has followed a great increase in all bird life, which was depleted by the drought of 1914. Birds which have not been seen for years have again visited us at Yanco, and there is little doubt that the constant cultivation of the soil, imperative under irrigation conditions, in addition to a permanent and easily accessible supply of water, will attract and maintain a great number of insect-eating birds, to the advantage of the orchardist, if he be only wise enough to recognise this and protect his feathered allies.

It is frequently noticeable how birds place themselves to show beauties of plumage to the fullest advantage. One wonders whether it is accidental or an instinctive display, such as Darwin describes, where a bird whose beauty was all on his back, crouched, with one side higher than the other, so that his every beauty was fully revealed when courting. Thus, a blue crane (white-fronted Heron) was to be seen during June and July posing before a soft greyish-green bush wattle. It was a beautiful picture, and, one felt characteristically Australian; but was the crane conscious of the contrast he made against his well-chosen background or did his thoughts soar no higher than the "yabbies" in the canal bank on which he stood? He has gone now to some far quieter spot with his mate, and built his nest by the river. Again, does the wagtail, or his cousin, the scissor-grinder, know how charmingly he completes the picture as he perches on a branch of almond blossom with a background of orange grove and soft misty blue hills in the distance, or is he, too, intent on unwary insects hovering over the canal close by?

Another lovely picture on a sunny day is a white Ibis floating lazily in the air; white plumage, black neck, and beak thrown into strong relief against the blue sky. Large flocks of black and white Ibis are also to be seen, flying high, and always maintaining the V-shaped line of flight. Their appearance is said to herald rain, and certainly it has done so this year, though showers have been so frequent that this could easily be a coincidence.

During the winter a pair of grey shrike thrushes and two large brown-striped honey-eaters made regular calls at the writer's doorstep for crumbs; the former have not been seen for weeks, but the honey-eaters have betaken themselves to the wattle trees close by, and now in bloom. Their delicious gurgling note is to be heard constantly, reminding one of pleasant places by the river.

A pair of tiny tit-warblers have built a nest in a vine covering the writer's verandah, placing it immediately beside the entrance. They built the nest, hatched out the family, and are proceeding with the feeding thereof, entirely undisturbed by the comings and goings of the members of the human family. The baby tits are now to be seen perching on the edge of the nest, so it will soon be vacant. These tiny birds are a great friend to the citrus orchardist, for they love the scale insects which infest citrus trees, and may often be seen clinging to a leaf, busily picking off scale so fast that the eye can scarcely follow their movements. They are great aerial acrobats, and some of the species are songsters of no mean order.

THE WOOL TRADE.

APPRAISEMENTS AND SHIPPING

Now that the strike is generally over, and industrial conditions are less abnormal than usual, there is a good prospect of some announcement soon being made by the Central Wool Committee with regard to the initial appraisement dates for the current season. The industrial trouble affected wool transit, wool handling in the stores, and wool shipments. For a while wool could not be received for carriage on the railways, and the Central Wool Committee requested growers to hold wool back in the country until conditions became normal. Shearing has been proceeding without any very serious breaks through wet weather conditions in the west, north-west, and Riverina, also in the early districts of Victoria and South Australia. There have been interruptions in Queensland through shearing troubles. Generally, however, a good volume of wool has been flowing to appraisement centres in the various States, more particularly in New South Wales and Queensland. Consequently, there is ample wool for the first catalogues of the season in Sydney, Brisbane, and other markets. Since July 1 over 69,000 bales have been received in Sydney by rail, and over 10,000 bales by boat. In addition to those wool receipts, there have been the consignments of scoured wools and scoured skin-wools from the local fellmongery works going into the stores, all making a good plea for appraisement as soon as other conditions are satisfactory for proceeding. Unfortunately, the strike prevented wool from being shipped in such large quantities as would have been the case if industrial conditions had been normal. During July upwards of 57,665 bales were exported oversea from this State, whereas last month, according to the Sydney Customs figures, only 29,375 bales were shipped. Volunteers assisted in the work of shipping wool on transports and other vessels; nevertheless, there was obstruction through the industrial upheaval at a time when wool is so urgently needed by our Allies for the vigorous prosecution of the war, as well as for the emptying of appraised wools from the stores to make room for the new clip, which is now being shorn in increasing quantity from a very wide area of New South Wales.

SHIPPING AFFECTING PRICE BASIS.

This obstruction to the shipping of wool was one of the worst features of the strike, and was called attention to by Senator Fairbairn in Melbourne this week, who pointed out that its effect, among other things, was that of withholding the shipment of a very large quantity of wool urgently required by the Governments of Britain, France, Italy, Russia, and the United States to provide warm clothing for their men in the trenches during the winter. That was perhaps the most serious side of it, but shipping wool also very materially reacts upon the workers themselves, for if the wool cannot be shipped the day may come when appraisements cannot be held through the congestion of wool in the stores. A very considerable proportion of the income of wage-earners is indirectly due to wool, whether employed on the railways and tramways of the Government, in the wool stores, or on the wharfs. Even the very price paid to woolgrowers for this season's production was, in a measure, governed by the lack of sufficient tonnage to lift the wool to its various destinations. When Mr. Massey announced the intention of the British Government to acquire this season's New Zealand clip on the basis of last season's rates he quoted sentences from a communication received from the Imperial authorities on the subject. One, relating to shipping and the price to be paid, was that in considering what would be a fair price for the next clip, it is important to bear in mind that shipping facilities will become increasingly inadequate to lift the clips, and in any case a considerable quantity of wool will almost certainly remain in Australasia until after the war. In view of the increased probability that wool will not be shifted, the Imperial Government considers that the price should not exceed the price of last year, but is prepared to pay for the whole of the clip on the basis of the 1916-17 prices." The communication added that the profit on the sale of any wool not required for Imperial purposes would be divided between the Imperial Government and the growers on the lines of last season's arrangement.

OPPOSITION TO DRAFT ALLOWANCE.

An interesting point in connection with the acquisition of the New Zealand clip was that at the Dominion conference of the Farmers' Union a resolution was passed expressing the opinion that the offer of the British Government to purchase the clip on the basis of last season's rates was satisfactory; but requested the New Zealand Government to stipulate that payment should be made for net weight; that is, without any draft allowance. Also that valuers should adhere strictly to schedule.

WOOL DEALERS AND ACQUISITION.

Wool dealers in the country carried their case to the Prime Minister on Thursday last. They are precluded by the wool regulations from purchasing wool of any one brand to the value of over £10, and are seeking to have this limit of purchase raised; to what extent was not stated. The argument of the dealers is that they play a very important part in the wool economy, by saving very small parcels of mixed wool, by separating mixed lots and presenting more attractive and regular consignments than could be the case if they were to cease operations; by furnishing small growers with ready cash, and thus prevent them having to wait for returns through the appraisements. It is readily admitted that the dealers have materially assisted in saving small parcels of mixed wool that otherwise might have gone to waste, and that, by their operations, they have sorted and graded mixed parcels of wool into much more presentable lots for the appraisements. At present their operations are very restricted through the £10 limit; and the debatable part of their claim comes in when it is proposed to raise it to any appreciable extent. A considerable number of small growers appreciate the operations of the dealers by 3880 signing a petition to have the limit raised. On the other hand, those who oppose any material change argue that wherever the dealers dominate the wool growing industry, there it is either stagnant or retrogressive. Growers, by sending their wool direct to the pool secure its maximum value; but they may have to wait for an indefinite period for the proceeds. The dealer would be prepared to pay cash; but then he would also have to make that difference in his price for the wool that would yield him both profit and interest. In the United States there is a movement afoot by both manufacturers and growers to put the wool industry there on the same plane as exists in Australia, their ideal being the auction system, and not dealing, but selling on commission. The appraisement system and the £10 maximum purchase by dealers conserves this principle; and, although there is no immediate danger of dealers exercising any such influence on the wool industry in Australia as is felt in America, still it is one of the problems of the time that cannot be airily solved. Doubtless the central wool committee will give the matter its usual earnest consideration, having the best interest of the industry in view as a whole, rather than the advantages to be gained by any particular section, however pressing their claims may be.

WOOL EXPORTS.

The return of the Sydney Customs of wool exported oversea from the State during July and August, shows a material increase over the corresponding period last year. Destinations are not given for obvious reasons. The quantity for the two periods compares as follows:—

	1917. Bales.		1916. Bales.
July and August	87,040	..	39,105
Increase	47,935	..

BRITISH WOOL SUPPLIES.

The wool supply position in the United Kingdom is apparently much stronger than some reports indicated. It appears that an authority in the wool trade prepared a statement of facts and figures in connection with supplies and requirements that quite altered the views of the wool controlling department. The details too showed that very little wool had been lost by submarines. The "Financier," of July 30, referring to the subject, said Mr. Bulmer's figures have completely altered the whole aspect of wool supplies—at least, they have changed the outlook in such a way as to show conclusively that the trade can resume working 55½ hours on present stock in the country—and no one need be surprised if with the beginning of the winter mills are allowed to resume full time. It is to-day well known that the wool cargoes lost at sea are infinitesimal, and the arrivals continue to be on the whole satisfactory. Of course, one could have desired them to be still larger, but considering all things they are good, and if shipments are made per month from Australasia as sanctioned by the Shipping Controller, and providing that a reasonable measure of success attends the wool boats, the trade can rest easy that arrivals will be sufficient to meet all demands. In calculating the actual stocks of wool in this country full regard has not been paid by the officials of the department to the considerable stocks of tops, noils, laps, wastes, and shoddies, all of which are good raw manufacturing materials. When these figures, as they did on December 31, on the top side of 100,000,000lb, if no account is taken of them a different complexion is put upon the whole question of stocks. According to the figures of stocks got together by Mr. J. W. Bulmer, there is available all round 1,020,000,000lb of greasy wool, this including both Colonial and British wool, tops and noils. It is not permissible to state here the actual quantity which has been sanctioned by the Shipping Controller to be brought home monthly from Australasia, but the fact that 124,000 bales left Australia and New Zealand during last month shows conclusively that our shipping resources are still considerable. If anything like that weight is brought monthly between now and the end of the year, our supplies are guaranteed for many months into 1918.

SYDNEY WOOL RECEIPTS.

A very fair quantity of wool has been received in store during the week by rail and a small quantity by boat. The receipts by both means of transit are an improvement on previous arrivals. The arrivals by boat are small, but very welcome. The quantity received for the week by rail and boat compare with the corresponding periods last year as follows:—

BY RAIL.

Season.	Sept. 15-21. Bales.	July 1-Sept. 21. Bales.

CULCAIRN SHOW.

CULCAIRN, Friday.

The Culcairn Society's annual show was concluded in excellent weather. There were record entries, and attendances. A feature of the show was the hunters' contest.

MILK SUPPLY.

TAREE.—At the annual meeting of the Upper Manning (Purfleet) Co-operative Dairy Co., Ltd., the chairman (Mr. R. Malcolm), stated that the output during the past six months was 442,056lb of butter. During the six months they had started sending milk to Sydney. The company had been handicapped by not having the factory fitted up to deal with large quantities of milk, by the fact that they had to cart the milk from the factory to the railway station, and they also had the drawbacks connected with beginning a business, but they had demonstrated that they were able to send milk to Sydney profitably; and they had been congratulated on the quality of the milk. At present the milk business was blocked by the strike, but would be resumed when the railway service was normal. He thought in the future the milk business would prove the most profitable form of dairying for the small dairy farmers nearest the river banks.

ROYAL COMMISSION.

Judge Hamilton has been appointed a Royal Commission to inquire into the charges made in the Legislative Assembly by Mr. R. A. Price, M.L.A., against Mr. W. G. Ashford, Minister for Lands and Forestry.

The Commission will open at the Courthouse, Darlinghurst, on Monday next, at 11 a.m. Mr. A. B. Page is the secretary of the commission.

FIRST DIVISION FURLOUGH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As a mother whose sons enlisted at initiation of war, may I add my voice to the many pleading for furlough for those brave fellows who have fought now for three years, or near it.

It seems inhuman and un-British to keep these war-weary men there, after what they have suffered and endured for so long—some Rabaul men, Gallipoli, desert, and France—simply because the shirkers and those "apologies for men" are not compelled to do their duty and their bit.

It is neither fair play to them nor their mothers and wives, who have borne the strain so long, most of whom have become physical, nervous wrecks. Another aspect is, Is the future race of New South Wales to be the offspring of the shirkers and wastrels, who did not consider it worth while to fight for Australia or their women folk? Not only the 1st Division, but every Anzac, should without delay be granted furlough. Many Anzacs fought for months on the peninsula and at the evacuation happened to be just about three months after the 1st Division arriving there. Those men (every Anzac) should without delay be granted this most necessary furlough. I would suggest that some influential person call a meeting, and appoint a deputation of all those interested, and wait on the Lord Mayor or Acting Premier, asking a petition be sent to the Prime Minister without delay, praying "that every man of New South Wales that fought at Gallipoli, desert, and France, who has been absent from Australia for 2½ years, should be immediately granted furlough." I am, etc.,

ELLIE WHARTON-KIRK.

A New Zealand correspondent sends us the following extract from the Oamaru "Mail"—

"WELLINGTON, August 27.

"The Prime Minister states that the first batch of main body men—those engaged in Egypt—will start on the return journey almost immediately."

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1917.

A GREAT BRITISH SUCCESS.

The official reports are an emphatic assertion of the greatness of the British success and an explanation of the tests by which it should be judged. The Commander-in-Chief has used language carefully chosen to express the most complete satisfaction with the results of the day's battle, and to prevent the reaction which would be bound to follow from a mistaken estimate of the objects sought and attained. The results may be judged by either of two standards. The British set out to capture a number of strong defensive positions which barred their way on the east and north-east of the Ypres salient. In doing so they put to the test new methods of attack devised and carefully rehearsed during an interval of apparent inaction to meet the new tactics of the Germans. Sir Douglas Haig's report is a clear indication that both these standards have been passed with unbroken success. The troops must anticipate the counter-attacks which mark the second stage of every offensive. But they meet them in positions which for weeks, and, perhaps, for months past, have been thought an impassable barrier to their advance. The front selected for the attack is not nearly as wide as that of the August advance. We hear of no advance by the French and Belgians nearer the coast, or by the British army to the south. But within the eight miles between the Ypres-Staden road and the Ypres-Comines Canal are included the strongest defences of the enemy, whether natural or artificial, and the two roads which lead to the most valuable strategic prizes of the campaign. The advance is a continuation of the great movement which began with the capture of Messines Ridge. As long as the Germans held that position they could always restrict the plans of the Allies by the threat of an attack which they would have begun at a great advantage. The capture of the ridge gave the Allies greater freedom, and put the Germans finally on the defensive. The victory announced this morning has deprived them of the defences on which they relied with the greatest confidence. The British, South African, and Australian troops have entered and carried those woods which, to many faint-hearted observers, seemed to be both costly and impregnable. In this flat and populous country the smallest collection of trees may be called a wood, and the most minute slope a hill. But such woods and heights approached over marshy ground have all the terrors of a modern fortress when prepared with the energy and the scientific skill at the disposal of the enemy in the fourth year of the war. The correspondents give us some details of the methods by which farms and woods and lakes have been adapted to meet an attack. It is plain that such barriers could not be expected to yield by an assault, even when preceded by the heaviest bombardment. The German leaders themselves have been so confident in their resistance that they have staked the reputation of the army on the failure of the British to break them down. The tone of Sir Douglas Haig's report shows that they have been broken by the combination of technical skill with an undaunted infantry, directed by leaders of the highest order of ability. No greater share in the victory can be ascribed to one arm than to another. It has only been possible because the British have had airmen to make exact photographs of the scene of the battle, to observe the concentrations of enemy troops, and to join in the attack, because the airmen have co-operated with a brave and skilful infantry, and because the staff work of our army is now beyond reproach.

Australians will learn with renewed pride that in such a battle their fellow-countrymen have held a place of honour. The reports agree that they have borne themselves as worthy comrades of the heroes of Fleurbaix, Pozieres, Bullecourt, and Messines. Their success repeats the lesson of successive reinforcements that Australian troops continue capable of doing a special work, the value of which cannot be measured by the proportion of their numbers to the total of the Allied armies. In this battle they have successfully attacked two of the most precious German defences—Glencorse Wood and Nuns Wood, which in the last advance withstood all assaults. They are now in the centre of the territory formerly occupied by the enemy on the line between the two immediate objectives of the British—Zonnebeke and Gheluvelt. The battle has been a further example of the united efforts of the Empire, for the South African troops were pressing forward on one part of the line while the Canadians are continuing their pressure against the enemy at Lens. The success takes the Allies past an important stage in the movement for turning the Germans out of France and Flanders, in which the French defence of the Aisne heights and the Canadian attacks on Lens are important elements. It has given them far better starting points for their approach to Roulers and Menin, which are to the German line in Flanders what Bapaume and Peronne were to his line on the Somme. Sir Douglas Haig's emphasis on the term "military" in his report must mean that, although no towns have been captured, and no great extent of territory re-occupied, a further advance has been greatly facilitated and the German army considerably weakened. But for many reasons the battle will derive its chief importance from its place in the war of science which General Smuts described in a recent interview. The science has not been entirely mechanical. It has involved brain against brain, and organisation against organisation. There were many, who, after comparing the results achieved with their own expectations, decided that the Germans had evolved a scheme under which the Allies could not expel them from France except at a prohibitive cost, and after an unbearable delay. This battle has decided that the German scheme is not invincible. The British tactics having been remodelled, have overcome it. Such an example of the value of their efforts and of the vulnerability of the German lines will encourage the Allied peoples to the continued exertions necessary for final victory. It cannot but help to disillusionise the German people as they realise the failure of their own hopes, and contemplate the growing strength of their enemies.

"CARRY ON."

On many hoardings, in many windows, there is the picture of a man whose finger seems to point at every passer-by, and at the top of the picture are the words: "Carry on." A wonderful face is this—the face of a man full of earnestness and full of character, with eyes that have the unmistakable fire of the soldier in them. And indeed he was a great soldier, for it is the face of Lord Kitchener. "Carry on." Kitchener, being dead, yet speaketh. His was the voice that bade us prepare for a long war, and his was the brain and his the hand that organised the British people for war. When his work was done he was gathered to his fathers. Kitchener showed us how to make war against a mighty nation which threatened to destroy not merely the British people and their institutions, but civilisation itself and all the blessings that are enjoyed by the free peoples of the earth; and it is for us to continue on the lines he laid down. This man was under no delusions, and he prophesied that the war would last for fully three years. More than that, he said that Great Britain would only begin to make her power really felt in the third year. Three years have passed, and the war still goes on; but day by day, and week by week, Great Britain, despite all her sacrifices in blood and treasure, grows stronger in her determination to continue the struggle until victory at last crowns her efforts. And day by day the fact impresses itself upon the enemy with ever-growing force. Even at this hour eastward of Ypres, another great British offensive is being pushed home, and Australian soldiers, we read, are in the thick of it. Only recently Professor Delmer, an Australian, writing in the London "Times" with a first-hand knowledge of conditions in Germany, informed us that the Germans were impressed on all sides by the marvellous way in which the British peoples have organised themselves, and that they were saying: "We did not think that such a thing was possible." And in an article in the August number of the "Nineteenth Century," Bishop Bury, after having made more than one tour through the war areas of Europe, tells us of a leading Swiss official who remarked that whilst all the other belligerent Powers were weary of the war, and most of all the German people, "you British are only just beginning to feel that you are really at war, your people entering into their first real enthusiasm, and more determined than ever to see it through." It is the British way. We move slowly. We take a long time to decide on our course of action, and often enough we take the longest way round, making many wrong turnings by the way, but in the end we reach our goal. We can rest assured that Great Britain will not sheathe the sword until the task be completed, but it may well be a matter of shame to us in Australia if, whilst reaping all the benefits that victory means, we desert the motherland in the final and most critical stages of the war.

Australia must carry on. We have made great sacrifices, it is true, but we have also made a great name, and for our honour's sake we should be careful that we do not lose our reputation. The arrival of over six hundred wounded and sick Australians in Sydney on Wednesday was a further reminder of the great part that Australia is playing in the war and of the sacrifices that it entails, but it is also a reminder that it is our duty to make good the losses by sending more and more men to the front. The first remark that one of the returned heroes made was that there is an absolute need of more soldiers to reinforce the Australians on service; and one cannot read of Sergeant Buchanan's praise of the wounded and the stoical way in which they bear their sufferings without admiration and pride. Private Buchanan is a Gympie miner. He took part in the famous landing on Gallipoli. Afterwards he went to France. He went through Pozieres and Mouquet Farm, and for rescuing wounded comrades under fire he was awarded the Military Medal. Then he was wounded himself, and he comes back to tell us, as all the others tell us, that our men are badly in need of reinforcements. If anything could rouse the young men of this country to a sense of their duty, the stories of these men ought to do it; and especially ought this story of the Gympie miner to reveal to the coal miners who are on strike to-day the utter callousness of their action in holding up the despatch of troops and supplies to the front. We can well understand the amazement of these returned soldiers on learning that thousands of men were standing idly by while their brothers were fighting in the trenches. A "psychological outburst" is what Mr. Gulhen recently called it; but our returned soldiers have a stronger name for it. The story is told of a chaplain who, in describing the heroism of the British soldiers in France, burst out with great fervour—"I simply don't feel fit to black those men's boots." What, then, ought to be the feelings of men who, in their country's extremity, with their own brothers and sons fighting in order to preserve this land inviolate and free, do not scruple, at the behest of a few disloyal men, to go on strike and hold up the great industries of the country? The worst feature of it all is that, with men's minds disturbed by local strife, our war duties are forgotten and recruiting falls almost to zero. Is it to be said of Australia that, while Great Britain and Canada and New Zealand are still throwing all their weight into the scale, we have grown tired and are not prepared to do any more? Are we to go down to history as a nation that professes great things, and indeed does great things, in the beginning, but thereafter retires from the field, unable to keep up with her competitors? It is almost tragical to think of those gallant men of the First Division who fought on Gallipoli in April of 1915 and have been fighting ever since practically without a rest, because Australia has refused to send sufficient men to relieve them. These men ardently long to return home for a brief rest, their wives and their parents long as ardently to see them—those of them, that is, who have survived it all—but it would seem that there are not sufficient men of spirit in Australia to volunteer to relieve them. Instead of this, men who could relieve them go on strike. But strikes or not, the appeal for recruits must still go on, no matter how poor the response. The Empire expects us to "carry on," and our own honour demands it.

WAR CHEST APPEAL.

TO-DAY'S EVENTS.

The cricket match between teams representing past and present Moore Park players will commence at 2 o'clock this afternoon on the old Surrey United wicket, Moore Park. The umpires will be Messrs. Thomas Garrett and Alex. C. Bannerman, the international players.

THE FLOWER SHOP AND STALL.

Those in charge of the "War Chest" Flower Shop are making a double effort on War Chest Day. In addition to the usual business in the shop, they will, as on previous occasions, control a restaurant at 126A Pitt-street, and also the flower stall among the "War Chest" stalls in Moore-street, near the Commonwealth Bank. Here they will be very completely stocked. On one side of the stall Mrs. J. O. Fairfax and Miss Fairfax will show some lovely pot plants, seedlings, and also packets of seeds. The other three sides will be devoted to flowers, posies of various kinds, and decorative floral ideas. A great feature of the stall will be an up-to-date gardening book, entitled the "War Chest Flower Book."

The ladies assisting at this stall are all connected with the War Chest Flower Shop, and are, besides those already mentioned, Mrs. C. de Maistre Walker, Mrs. J. S. Boyce, Mrs. Carmichael, and Miss Eckford. Mrs. Geoffrey Fairfax has in her special charge the book of flowers and the sale of War Chest buttons. Mr. J. Lockley, a member of the flower shop committee, is also giving valuable assistance.

Donations of flowers, plants, etc., for War Chest Day are to be sent to Room 4, Ocean House, Moore-street.

WAR CHEST FLOWER BOOK.

Those engaged in the War Chest campaign have well carried out the happy idea of Mrs. C. Le M. Walker, of putting forth a little book on six of the favourite garden flowers, each flower being treated by a specialist, the whole under the general editing of Mr. Stanley H. Hedworth. The book, which is named "The War Chest Flower Book," is excellently printed with some good illustrations by Messrs. Bloxham and Chambers. Mr. William Grant, superintendent of the Outer Domain, writes upon roses; Mr. H. J. Brunning, of the Melbourne firm of the same name, on carnations; Mr. James Clay, on bouvardias; Mr. H. C. Motte, of Albury, on sweetpeas; Mr. F. H. Holland, on dahlias; and Mr. J. H. Horton, on chrysanthemums. There is thus, besides authority, infinite riches in a little room in "The War Chest Flower Book," and apart altogether from the admirable cause in which this array of horticultural knowledge is enlisted, the book deserves a wide welcome amongst the many who in the often discouraging soil and climate of Sydney and its suburbs achieve the growing of the lovely flowers now to be seen on all sides around the city. Besides directions for cultivation, each class of flower there are lists of the most popular varieties, and the book is full of the genial, well-informed tone that characterises good gardeners. Each section is like walking through his garden with a great expert, who talks as he goes, and gives both his flowers and the abundance of his experience.

MR. HOLMAN.

Our special correspondent in London, in his letter of August 6 last, says that "Mr. Holman soon recovered from the shock of his experience at the front, and has since been active in London and elsewhere. He has made a public appearance or two but more often has been concerned with visits and interviews which, while they do not necessarily bring him into the forefront, nevertheless enable him to meet and talk Australian affairs with leading men. In that way he has had opportunity of foregathering with a group of London editors, he has visited and spoken at munition centres, has made one rush visit to Ireland, and another to the home of the King of the Belgians, while he has been the guest, also, of Mr. Asquith, the Chief Justice of England, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and others of place and power in the land.

PROMOTIONS.

Mrs. W. F. Elliott, of Werrington, has received information that her husband, Sergt. W. F. Elliott, has been promoted on the field to lieutenant. He is a brother-in-law of the late Privates H. L. and N. L. Tingcombe.

WAR NOTES.

A TEST OF SYSTEMS.

After a lapse of over seven weeks, since his opening attack on the Flanders front to the eastward of Ypres, Sir Douglas Haig has launched another push with results which undoubtedly justify his use of the phrase "great success." If anyone interprets this expression as indicating something in the nature of a sweeping advance they will be falling into an error, which must lead to disappointment. A better idea of the position will be obtained if we remember that it is a military success, and that Sir Douglas Haig was faced with a problem upon the successful solution of which the whole of his strategical plan in Flanders probably depended. He was not seeking to effect an advance which would enable the British newspapers to show larger shaded areas on their maps and impress public opinion by the fact that another dozen or more ruined villages had passed into the possession of the Allies. It has been a case of a test of systems, and the test has proved that the Allied system of attack is superior to the enemy's new system of defence. Thursday's success means that the enemy has not solved the problem which was presented to him by the British offensive in the Somme region last year, and that his new defensive methods, which are the outcome of experience gained during and since that offensive, cannot save him from having to submit to the will of the superior forces and weight of material which are arrayed against him.

EARLIER TRIAL INCONCLUSIVE.

It is true that his new defensive system was applied during the last British attack at the end of July, and the question may naturally be asked whether that was not the real test. This, however, was not the case. In the first place, the enemy had not the time or the opportunity of preparing his ground in such a way as to give every advantage for the successful working of his new scheme. That attack was not a complete surprise, and he was able partly to apply his theories. The initial bombardment gave him warning of the coming attack, and enabled him to hold his front line with comparatively weak forces only, and to concentrate his troops in the rear of the shell-swept area for the counter-attack which was to win back the lost ground. He had not, however, had sufficient opportunity to construct the new concrete defences, in and near these advanced positions, which were to enable the comparatively weak forces left in the zone of fire to offer a resistance out of all proportion to their actual numerical strength. In other words, what was witnessed on July 31 was the outline of a new German defensive system, with all its weak points accentuated on account of lack of preparation. The British attack at the end of July committed them to extended operations on this front, and gave the enemy the warning for which he had been waiting. The seven weeks of comparative inactivity which have elapsed since the first push gave him the opportunity of gathering together the material and making the preparations which were to fill up the gaps and strengthen the weak points in his system of defence.

OFFENSIVE SCHEME REVISED.

During the past seven weeks the British have been by no means idle, and, apart from minor engagements, which gained ground slightly on the Ypres-Menin road, and recovered the village of St. Julien, they made one attack which might be regarded as a push, and which resulted in the capture of Langemarck. It was clear, however, that the real test was to come further south, near the nose of the salient, to the eastward of Ypres. The fighting around Westhoek and on the high ground on either side of the Ypres-Menin road, showed but little result. Attempts to advance at Glencorse Wood and Inverness Copse resulted in progress which was estimated in yards. It was on this high ground where the woods in his rear permitted the concentration of reserves, and where the nature of the ground aided the defence of his front lines, that the real test of the enemy's defensive would be made. But, during the pause in big operations, the British have been gaining knowledge of the task which lay ahead of them, and it is clear from the suggestions of some of the correspondents that the Allied offensive system has been at least revised in order to meet the new conditions. The knowledge which the British have gained by raids, by the observations of airmen, and by the bitter experience of only partially successful attacks has shown that some reply to the German system of defence was necessary if the attackers were not to be forced to pay too dearly for captured ground in future. Sir Douglas Haig's confident tone regarding the progress of the latest attack suggests that the Allies' theories in this respect have, for the most part, worked out satisfactorily.

BRITISH PLAN WORKS SMOOTHLY.

Sir Douglas Haig's message shows that the advance has not been one of unusual extent. It affected a front of only eight miles, and did not penetrate more than a mile at any point. It must be admitted, however, that, on reading Sir Douglas Haig's message, one cannot help being convinced of the truth of the correspondents' statements that the whole affair worked with clocklike regularity, the fixed objectives apparently being reached according to timetable. It was a battle of the farms and woods, and, although no big villages are reported to have been captured, these fortified farms and strongly defended woods, many of which had previously successfully resisted attack, fell before the carefully prepared and splendidly executed movement of the British, South African, and Australian troops, the latter fighting on one of the most important sectors near the point of the salient. The number of prisoners and guns captured was not extraordinarily great, and this was clearly due to the new German defensive scheme. The point of the British wedge has been driven farther into the enemy's line in spite of the fact that the nature of the country there favoured the enemy's determined effort to prevent it. There is much fighting ahead of the British still, however, and we have yet to see whether the positions gained will be held against the counter-attacks which must follow. We are again witnessing the struggle for position, which was one of the features of the Somme offensive. The British to the eastward of Ypres are faced with difficulties in some respects similar to those which they encountered on the Thiepval Ridge. The enemy, profiting by his experience, has tried to make them insurmountable, but he has again failed to do so, and the effect of Thursday's advance will be felt in the future operations in this region.

HIGH WAGES.

PERTH, Friday.

Mr. Miles, M.L.C., who has just returned from a visit to Port Darwin, says that money is flowing like water in that locality. Vestey Bros. are paying extraordinarily high rates of wages to butchers and slaughtermen. Some of the men are getting from £30 to £40 a fortnight, including overtime. Boys are earning from £16 to £18 a month. There are, he states, 20 motor cars plying for hire at Port Darwin, each averaging over £50 per week, which puts motor hire for the town at about £1 per head of the population per week.

MUNITION WORKERS FOR ENGLAND.

The New South Wales Munitions Committee, Cann's buildings, Wynyard-square, Sydney, is anxious to receive further applications from skilled tradesmen, also navvies or labourers, who are prepared to volunteer to proceed to England under the Commonwealth Government's scheme.

The conditions of free passages and allowances to dependents in Australia are stated to be very favourable, and workers proceeding under this scheme are guaranteed work by the Government.

The list for the next embarkation is now being made up, and any men desirous of proceeding under the Commonwealth Government's scheme should make early application to the secretary, Munitions Committee, Cann's buildings, Wynyard-square, Sydney.

BRITISH ATTACK

ON EIGHT MILES FRONT

VERY IMPORTANT GAINS

AUSTRALIANS PARTICIPATE

LONDON, Sept. 21.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reported as follows at midnight on Thursday:—

We attacked this morning east of Ypres, on an eight miles front, between the Ypres-Comines Canal and the Ypres-Staden railway.

Great success attended our troops. Positions of considerable military importance were won, and heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy.

We assembled our attacking regiments without incident, in spite of a steady rainfall during the night.

Our first objectives were captured at an early hour, including a number of concreted strong points and fortified farms, for the possession of which there has previously been heavy fighting.

North-country regiments carried Inverness Copse, and the Australians stormed Glencorse Wood and Nonneboschen Wood. Scottish and South African brigades took Potsdam, Vampire, and Borry farms.

The West Lancashire Territorials carried Iberian Farm and a strong point known as Gallipoli.

We then advanced to the assault of our final objectives.

English county troops on our right reached the line of their final objectives after sharp fighting in the woods north of the Ypres-Comines Canal.

North country and Australian battalions, in the centre, penetrated enemy positions to a depth of over a mile. They captured the whole of their objectives, including the hamlet of Veldhoek and the western portion of Polygon Wood.

Further north the hamlet of Zevenkot was captured, and the London and Highland Territorials carried a second line of farms, including Rose Farm, Quebec Farm, and Wurst Farm, on the line of their final objectives.

The weather this morning cleared, and our aeroplanes were able to take a more active part in the battle, indicating the position of our troops and reporting hostile concentrations to our artillery. Thus a number of German counter-attacks were broken up. Others were repulsed by our infantry.

Our prisoners exceed 2000. We captured a few guns.

There was considerable aeroplane observation on Wednesday. We engaged hostile troops and transport, and also dropped one and a half tons of bombs on various targets, and another ton at night time on billets and hutments. Six German machines were brought down and four driven down. Seven of our machines are missing.

GERMAN REPORT.

The Germans issued the following two communiques on Thursday:—

AT 7.55 P.M.

After most violent artillery fire between Houthohlst Wood and the Lys the English launched strong attacks on a broad front at daybreak.

AT 11.25 P.M.

A battle is in full swing on the English front from Langermarck (north of Ypres) to Hollebeke (south of Ypres). There has been bitter, fluctuating fighting all day in the foremost part of our defensive zone.

AUSTRALIAN STORMERS.

One correspondent reports that the Australians were selected as the "storm-troops," to be used in the centre of the British advance.

METHOD OF ATTACK

DEFEATS NEW SYSTEM OF DEFENCE.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, telegraphing on Thursday night, points out that this offensive is a test of new methods of attack against a new German system of defence, which we first encountered on July 31. The Germans had abandoned the trench system which was useless against our artillery, substituting therefor the block-house system, and trained teams of machine-gunners, with storm-troops in the rear, for use in counter-attacks.

The British to-day, continues Mr. Gibbs, encountered scores of these block-houses (or "pillboxes"). They are hard nuts to crack, but our new methods of attack cracked them.

The new method of assault was planned with great forethought, and it achieved high success. Many of the terrors of the blockhouse system have been dissipated.

The plan of attack in the direction of Polygon Wood worked like clockwork. The assaulting troops moved behind a barrage, stage by stage, through Westhoek and Nonneboschen and across the Hannebeke River, with scarcely a check, in spite of the blockhouses scattered freely about.

The garrisons of many of the blockhouses were demoralised by the bombardment. Some of the blockhouses were smashed. The Germans briefly worked their machine-guns, but, seeing the attackers approaching, they were seized with panic and surrendered.

News arrived at 9 o'clock that our men were through Glencorse Wood, and it was soon announced that they were fighting on into Polygon Wood, after sweeping over several strong points.

REMARKABLE BARRAGE.

The correspondent of the United Press Association telegraphs:—The British attacked heavily on a long front centring on the Ypres-Menin Road. There was fierce fighting in Inverness Copse, Glencorse Wood, Nonneboschen Wood, and at Nunbarton Lakes. The battle began at 5.40 this morning. The ground was muddy after heavy showers which fell during night. The clouds were only 600 feet high, and the velocity of the wind for 30 miles an hour.

Five barrages were put up by our artillery. They formed five walls of flying steel, these weaving backwards and forwards like a complicated loom, one barrage passing through another barrage, the whole forming a zone of destruction. It crept steadily forward. Any prisoners taken must come from dugouts. Nothing could live through such a storm. The troops on our centre followed the barrage up the heights towards Hamlet Ridge and the famous Polgone Wood.

Our airmen advanced with the infantry, attacking from an altitude of 500ft and less, sometimes swooping down until the wheels seemed to touch the German helmets, machine-gunning the enemy as he flew. Aerial cavalry is an appropriate name for the airmen, who definitely engaged the infantry, according to a pre-arranged plan. The enemy is keenly alive to the importance of the heights forming the centre of our attack, which he is making desperate efforts to retain.

The Germans, suspecting the attack, moved considerable bodies of troops forward, which our fire caught. Tanks were used sparingly, owing to the ground being unfavourable, but they were not needed, as our artillery preparation was of greater depth than used hitherto in the war.

It was an unprecedented barrage which preceded the infantry, who soon entered Inverness Wood, Glencorse Wood, and Nonneboschen Wood. The German artillery retaliated heavily, especially on the Anzacs' right. The German losses were unusually heavy.

TRIUMPH FOR BRITISH ORGANISATION.

Telegraphing from the British headquarters on Thursday evening, Mr. Percival Phillips says:—

The battle was of the greatest intensity between Saint Julien and the cemetery in Hollebeke (a front of over seven miles), where the greatest gains have been made. The British are fighting with the utmost enthusiasm. Once beyond the broken forests they swept over the more difficult area, comprising fortified farms and innumerable "pill boxes."

It was a very complete triumph for the infantry, which never attacked with more determination and vigour; for the artillery, which furnished the finest set of barrages yet seen; and for the men behind, who planned a disastrous surprise for the enemy. It is a triumph of our men over concrete, of our guns over "pill boxes," and of British grit and skill over German tactics.

The "pill boxes" are emptying, and the redoubts are giving up their dazed garrisons—men literally dancing from terror. Their faith in concrete has been broken by the weight of the British shell fire.

The result of the day's struggle is that our line has been placed on better ground, beyond the many barriers which have been confronting us so long.

The most important gains are between Hollebeke and Westhoek, south of the Ypres-Roulers railway, along a stretch of open farm land, and thence northward, where fighting is in progress around and beyond the high ground on either side of the Zonnebeke-Langemarck road.

Two tanks gave timely assistance in an attack on Schuler farm. Thirty prisoners were taken at one farm in the same district, many belonging to the 121st Prussian Division. A tough nut to crack was the outflanking and capture of a strong redoubt, half-way below Westhoek and Zonnebeke.

German guns were more active in the afternoon than in the morning. Their first retaliatory barrage was late, and ineffective, and snipers in the trenches were the chief sign of infantry activity. Our men crept round the "pill boxes," dodging from one crater to another, sniping and using their rifles like old regulars, beating the Huns at their own game.

Our casualties were slight.

An important element in the defence was the series of fortified farms, which were heavily bombed. The surviving machine-gun crews emerged, and were made prisoners. Schuler Farm, hitherto impregnable, was surrounded by water on three sides and flanked by the "Schuler Gallery"—a long line of "pill boxes" arranged to meet attacks from several directions. These points were the scene of heavy fighting.

A regimental order, found on prisoners, shows that the garrisons in these advanced forts, at 1 o'clock in the morning were warned to expect a British assault. German batteries, between 1 and 2 o'clock, heavily bombarded this portion of the British front.

South of Schuler Farm prisoners profess that the attack was unexpected. All the evidence shows that the German command was aware that trouble was imminent, but was unable to ascertain the extent of the attacking front.

Zonnebek redoubt, a massive concrete structure at the fork of the railway and the road, was stormed, after giving some trouble to the attackers. Then the latter advanced over crater-strewn ground, and discovered a cluster of seven dugouts full of Germans. The Germans flung bombs when summoned to surrender—foolishness which resulted fatally.

The capture of the redoubt midway between Westhoek and Zonnebeke was effected by flanking parties, bombing and shattering the doors. The remnants of the garrisons filed out and surrendered. The Germans only resisted when they thought their shelters were shell-proof and bomb-proof.

The fighting in the wooded country in the centre of the attack was as satisfactory as the fighting to the northward, but was slower, owing to mud, water, and masses of broken timber. Our men were through Glencorse Wood and Nonnebosschen before 8 o'clock.

The most difficult task in this sector fell to the troops south of Inverness Copse, where the mud was deep and full of broken wire, and there was much machine-gun fire. Nevertheless, this difficult region was cleared. We gained control of Hamlet Ridge sooner than we had anticipated.

Eleven "pill-boxes" were scattered in Shrewsbury Forest, but all were silenced fairly easily. The attackers then encountered many concealed machine-guns and snipers. These also were silenced. Numerous patches of wood in this area were the scenes of similar sharp fighting. All were cleared, except two.

Our new front was well established before noon. Fighting is in progress beyond it. It has been a day of hard fighting, and more is to come.

The enemy is massing for counter-attacks, and is hurrying along the roads in omnibuses. Our gunners are ready for him.

All of our troops who took part in the battle were specially trained to meet the new German tactics, and they succeeded to everyone's satisfaction. They went over without their packs and other heavy kit. The change was of great benefit, especially owing to the heavy ground, and they were able to attack the "pill-boxes" in a sort of skirmishing style, quite like old times. The "pill-boxes" had given them, previously, many a bad moment, and the pessimists predicted that they would kill any infantry advance. Our new tactics killed the "pill-boxes" instead.

As an instance of the lightness of our casualties, it may be stated that one battalion, advancing 800 yards through a forest and over difficult ground, had only three men wounded. In another case, a company had five casualties.

HOW THE AUSTRALIANS ATTACKED.

Mr. Bean, official correspondent with the A.I.F., cabling from London on Thursday evening, says:—

British and Australian troops have been launched in a most tremendous attack. The bombardment is such as has not before been known. The British battle front is now advancing behind that barrage, both to the right and left of the Australians.

Before the Australians, as at Pozieres, stretches country which is the summit of the battlefield. It is one long, bare ridge, sloping down on the south to the plain beyond Messines, curving round on the north past the little valley of the Hannebeek, and further streams, in one long sickle of hills, outstanding from the Flanders Plain. Three years ago this ridge was clothed by the great trees of Polygon Wood, around Zonnebeke Racecourse, where the first small British army made a stand for ever glorious, and where the Canadians and British held on, fighting inch by inch, after the Germans broached their first vile gas cylinders.

To-day that same ridge is just one long, bare, red flank of mother earth, lying naked to the skies. On the nearer end, from four red craters, and relics of recent battles, hang the few gaunt, black stumps of Inverness Copse and Glencorse Wood; and where the valley dips down on the northern slope to the Hannebeek, before the powdered brick-heaps which once were Westhoek Village, lies the wood of Nonneboschen. Beyond this, up the further slope from Hannebeek, can be seen the broken farm buildings known as Anzac.

To the right of all this, from Glencorse Wood, runs the bare, gently-rounded crest of the main ridge. At the further end, again [illegible] eastern horizon, are a few more black [illegible] stumps and a big brown earthen mole like the tailings from a copper mine. That, with low undergrowth a few feet high, is all that remains at this hour of famous Polygon Wood. That desolate country, where the face of nature has been flayed and pimpled all over as with warts by concrete blockhouses, and pitted as by smallpox with water-filled craters, is the battlefield into which our boys were launched this morning.

For days they had been marching up into it—strong, silent columns, seen by the flicker of guns, tramping up long roads by night—lone files of determined men, wending their way over the crater-field by day.

One has never seen the Australians in more magnificent heart. Every man seems to have some pet bomb or bayonet which he is nursing for the Germans. They went into the battle as Australians generally do, not singing or laughing like many British regiments, but very grim, very silent, with their officers marching quietly at the head of each small string of men.

The new portents of this new battlefield opened themselves around them. A new German gas shell and a new German incendiary shell—which lit up the whole expanse with one gigantic rose-glow, like that of the blowing-up of an ammunition dump. For several days the Australians held the line under a gradually growing torment of shells, which the Germans poured in in retaliation for our increasing bombardments.

Now, under the thunder of the mightiest artillery ever concentrated, the Australians have gone into one of the world's mightiest battles. Dust and smoke has swallowed them up. By the time this reaches Australia, the communiques will probably have told the fate of this great enterprise. We do not know it yet, and from where some of us are waiting for news, it will be difficult to get it away for some hours.

One can only say that they who went into this great test are the same grand, whole-hearted Australian boys who took Pozieres, and who stormed Gallipoli.

AMERICAN MILLIONS

ON WEST FRONT NEXT YEAR.

The Washington correspondent of the "New York Herald" says that the American troops will launch a big drive on the West front next summer, but they will start active duty in the trenches before Christmas.

The United States Secretary for War has explained to the Congress that the additional money asked for is to help to equip and supply an army of 2,300,000 during next year.

FRENCH COMMUNIQUES.

THURSDAY, ISSUED 6 P.M.

There is intense artillery fire south of the Oise, in the Champagne sector, at Mount Cornilet and High Mount, and on both banks of the Meuse.

THURSDAY, ISSUED 11.50 P.M.

After a violent bombardment the enemy attacked south-east of Cerny. He was stopped by our fire, and did not succeed in reaching our lines.

SERVIAN SUFFERERS

AT MERCY OF TURKS.

LONDON, Sept. 20.

Distressing details are published regarding the situation in Servia. The population normally was 3,170,000. It is now 2,218,000. The re[illegible]n in the male population is 28 per [illegible] and includes practically all males from [illegible] 60 years of age.

Thirty thousand Servian women and children and boys from the Nish district were deported and interned in Asia Minor, where 8000 were delivered to the Turks. A great number of women preferred suicide by throwing themselves out of the trains going to Asia Minor. Those left in Servia are continually writing to friends in outer Europe to "send us bread or we die."

At the present time only £6000 is being spent monthly on Servian relief though there are 2,000,000 sufferers, and 60,000 families are without any means of living.

FRANCE AND RUSSIA.

NO PUBLICATION OF TREATIES.

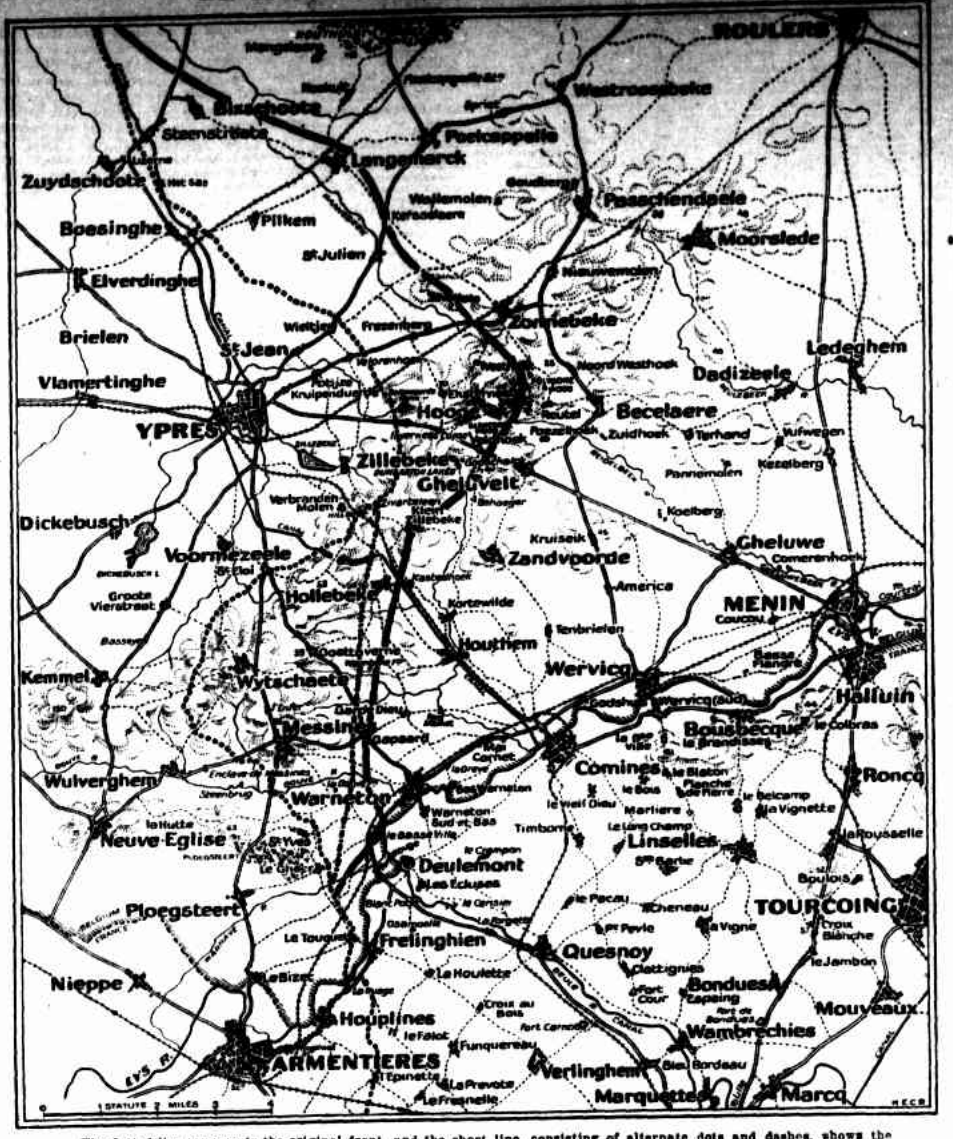
PARIS, Sept. 20.

M. Ribot (Minister for Foreign Affairs), replying in the Chamber of Deputies to a request for the publication of secret treaties with Russia, said that this was not the time to let Germany believe that there is any division between the Allies. He was perfectly willing to publish the documents, but the Russian Government had requested him not to do so at present.

France, he added, had not replied to the Pope's Peace Note, and would not reply to any proposal of which the origin was not known.

The Chamber passed an overwhelming vote of confidence in the new Government.

BRITISH OFFENSIVE IN FLANDERS.



The dotted line represents the original front, and the short line, consisting of alternate dots and dashes, shows the front reached after the Messines offensive. The heavy black line represents approximately the present front as indicated by the recent cabled messages. The greater portion of the ground between the dotted line and the heavy black line was taken during the offensive delivered on July 31 last. The latest attack extended along an eight-mile front, from the Ypres-Comines canal, in the south, to the Ypres-Staden railway, in the north. The latter railway will be seen passing close to the northern outskirts of Langemarck. Borry and Vampir farm, mentioned in Sir Douglas Haig's message, are not shown on the above map, but are situated on the northern side of the Ypres-Zonnebeke road, slightly south-west of Zevenkote. Tower Hamlets, referred to by Mr. Percival Phillips, is situated about the spot where the letter "U" stands in the word Gheluvelt on the above map.

RUSSIAN EVENTS.

SOMETHING IMPENDING.

KERENSKY MAY BECOME PRESIDENT.

LONDON, Sept. 21.

The Petrograd correspondent of the Paris "Matin" says:—

An impression is prevalent that something is being hidden.

M. Kerensky, since the proclamation of a republic, has been following a definite but mysterious aim.

The newspapers pretend ignorance of impending events, and the exact significance of the council of five superseding the Government.

An influential Moderate informed the "Matin's" correspondent that M. Kerensky is aiming at complete civil and military control. There is a possibility that he will achieve his aim, and to-morrow M. Kerensky may be proclaimed president of the Russian Republic and supreme head of the State. Such a development would end the period of disorganisation.

A telegram from Haparanda received in Copenhagen states that the situation in Russia is most critical, and that diplomatic circles are alarmed, as it is believed that the growing strength of the Maximalist movement threatens M. Kerensky's position.

KERENSKY AND SOCIALISTS.

The Petrograd correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" says:—The Socialist caucus meeting on Monday is the latest Socialist political excitement. The extremists aim at making the conference a kind of Parliament which will elect a Socialist Ministry, seize power, and remain in session as a legislative body.

M. Tchernoff, who is the prime instigator of the caucus, is carrying on a violent agitation against M. Kerensky, supported by a party called the Social Revolutionaries. M. Tchernoff's organ, "Dyelonaroda," is full of insinuations and charges against M. Kerensky, which the Premier stigmatises as lies.

The Central Committee of the Soldiers and Workmen's Council is entirely in M. Tchernoff's hands. The extremists are seizing administrative power in other towns. The Moscow Workmen's Council demands a Socialist Government, an immediate declaration of peace, and the transfer of all lands to the peasantry.

The Directory is preparing to form a Coalition Ministry in order to face the caucus as an accomplished fact.

The Stockholm correspondent of the United Press Agency states that German agents in Viborg spread false reports that General Vassiluf, Commander-in-Chief in Finland, had refused M. Kerensky's request to send troops to quell the Korniloff rebellion. Infuriated loyal soldiers attacked their officers. They threw ten, including General Vassiluf, into the river, shot them dead, and decapitated and hanged others. A reign of terror existed until the soldiers realised that M. Kerensky's request had been honoured.

PLEDGE TO AMERICA.

The Russian Ambassador in Washington called on the Department of State and gave a formal pledge that Russia would continue the war until German autocracy was crushed. He declared that the political and military situation in Russia was rapidly improving.

STARVING PRISONERS.

It is reported from Geneva that hundreds of Russian prisoners in Austria are dying daily from starvation. Doctors do not visit the camps. They declare that food is the only remedy, and it is unprocurable.

WAR'S RESPONSIBILITIES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.

Mr. Hoover (Food Controller) warned a conference of business men in Atlantic City that socialism might be the penalty if employers did not realise the responsibilities of the war and refused to co-operate with the Government.

RIGA OFFENSIVE.

RUSSIAN SUCCESS.

A Russian official message on Thursday afternoon stated: We drove back, with great losses, an enemy offensive east of Lemburg, a village north-east of Riga.

The London correspondent of the "New York Herald" says it is believed in well-informed quarters that Germany is planning to deliver a quick stroke with the Baltic fleet against the Russians before the ice forms.

ROUMANIAN FRONT.

A Russian official message on Thursday stated:—The enemy recaptured positions south of Grozechti.

A German official message on Thursday stated:—A Russian attack west of Arbora, Bukovina, was driven back. The Russians again endeavoured to advance.

ROUMANIAN SUCCESSES.

A report from Jassy, while making the comment that General von Mackensen has had a complete set-back in Roumania, adds that reports show that the enemy is massing large reinforcements in Bukovina. The Roumanians are constantly active, and in numerous small engagements they have been successful, and have captured many prisoners, confirming their moral superiority.

EAST AFRICA.

A Belgian communique says that the success of the Belgians in German East Africa at Madege, on September 9 and 10, was completed by the capture of enemy positions at Kalimoti. The enemy is retreating towards Mahenge on the whole front and is being pursued by the Belgians.

DECISION BY THE ARGENTINE.

EXPECTED AT ONCE.

IMPORTANT SHIPPING ASPECT.

The resolution adopted by the Argentine Senate demanding the breaking-off of diplomatic relations with Germany, pointed out that the dismissal of Count von Luxburg (the German Charge d'Affaires, who used the Swedish consular service to plot against the Argentine) was insufficient.

Sweden's official reticence concerning the exposure is interpreted in Washington as a cloak to cover embarrassing internal reforms. Cable facilities allowed the Swedish Minister are likely to be temporarily curtailed.

There is much gratification in Washington over the vote of the Argentine Senate, particularly because of the amount of German and Austrian shipping which would be released from Argentine ports if Argentine takes extreme action.

EMPEROR AND LUXBURG.

"FAITHFUL SERVICES."

An official wireless message from Berlin says that the German Emperor has telegraphed to Dr. von Kuhlmann (Foreign Secretary) his warmest appreciation of the faithful services which Count von Luxburg (lately Charge d'Affaires in Argentine) has rendered his Sovereign and his Fatherland. The Emperor adds that it is his intention to appoint Luxburg to another diplomatic post, in recognition of his merits.

HOLIDAY FOR EARLY DIVISIONS.

OTTAWA, Sept. 20.

The Prime Minister, Sir R. L. Borden, answering a question in Parliament, said that he understood that no steps had yet been taken in Australia to return from the front on holidays men composing the first 50,000. No such action was contemplated in the case of the Canadians.

HAYTI DECLARES WAR.

Advices have reached New York that the Council of State of the island republic of Hayti has voted that a state of war exists with Germany.

BAFFLING OF THE SUBMARINES.

SMOKE-SCREENS USED.

NAVAL AUTHORITY MOST OPTIMISTIC.

LONDON, Sept. 20.

A high naval authority states that new defensive measures against submarines are meeting with success.

Though no sensational inventions have appeared, the submarines have been definitely defeated, and the public need not have the slightest anxiety.

Good results have followed the smoke-cloud system which has saved dozens of ships. The majority of British merchantmen are now supplied with smoke-boxes, which, when thrown overboard, produce dense volumes of smoke, which, when skilfully used, completely baffles submarines. The United States authorities are also manufacturing huge quantities of smoke-boxes.

FRENCH LOSSES.

The number of ships which arrived in French ports during the week ended September 16 totalled 980, and the sailings 894. Two vessels over and two under 1600 tons were sunk. Two were unsuccessfully attacked.

ERZBERGER'S SPEECH.

The well-known Berlin daily newspaper "Germania" has been suspended for publishing in full the speech recently made by Herr Erzberger, a leader of the German Centre party. Erzberger said that the submarines had not succeeded, that England remains unconquered, and he urged that the German Government formulate the terms of an acceptable peace.

YEAR'S FOOD FOR BRITAIN.

TEN MILLION TONS.

WHERE THE DANGER LIES.

Lord Rhondda (Food Controller) states that Britain's minimum foodstuff requirements from the United States and Canada during the ensuing 12 months amount to over 10,000,000 tons, representing an expenditure exclusive of freights of £250,000,000, the bulk of which will be expended on cereals, sugar, and meat.

A special mission, composed of experts, will be sent to New York to create a permanent organisation to handle purchases. An arrangement had been made to purchase the present Cuban sugar crop. America had also agreed not to be a competing buyer in the Java sugar market.

The danger of the food situation lies, Lord Rhondda said, less in the submarine peril than in the world's food shortage.

Fruit traders have been informed nothing can be done at present to remove the import restrictions on apples.

REPATRIATED AUSTRALIANS.

Sir John M'Call (Agent-General for Tasmania) presided at a meeting of Australian natives, who welcomed the repatriated Australian prisoners. Sir Newton Moore and Captain Muirhead Collins paid tributes to the grit shown by the prisoners while in captivity in refusing to allow their spirits to be broken by brutal treatment.

CARGO FREIGHTS.

Cargo steamer freights to Melbourne and Sydney have been raised to 200/ per ton, and to Adelaide to 202/6 per ton.

QUESTION OF A CONFERENCE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the House of Representatives this morning Mr. Charlton (N.S.W.) asked the Prime Minister whether he had any knowledge of the conference between the New South Wales Government and the representatives of the coal miners. Mr. Hughes stated that he had received a telegram from Mr. Fuller, Premier of New South Wales, yesterday, saying that the question of holding a conference was being considered. He had also received a telegram from Mr. Baddeley, that the council was available for the conference. He assumed that he would receive further information as to the intentions of the New South Wales Government.

LATE WAR NEWS.

PRECISION OF ATTACK.

LONDON, Sept. 21.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, describing the great battle on Thursday, says:—

There was still fighting around a blockhouse called Anzac Corner, east of Hannebeke stream. Two flank attacks were organised. The attackers worked round and silenced the machine guns with bombs. The Germans emerged from a blockhouse near by and prepared for an attack, but when they saw our men swarming up they lost heart and threw up their hands.

Meanwhile the enemy's artillery reply was not exceptionally heavy. Though it came promptly, in response to the defenders' signals, it was mostly erratic and variable.

The assault on Inverness Copse and Shrewsbury Forest was across low-lying bogland, and was carried out at a fast pace. The attackers flung themselves on the redoubts with the greatest dash. Soon after the attack began our men reported that they were on the ridge south-west of Inverness Copse, and were "going strong" towards Veldhoek.

The enemy's barrage came too late. An officer led his company into the first position with only nine casualties.

AUSTRALIAN ATTACK.

Mr. Bean, official correspondent with the Australian forces, cables as follows:—

Thursday morning, 6.45 o'clock: News of a great attack has this moment arrived. Prisoners are coming back from isolated German posts in the hopeless maze of water-filled shell-holes and broken trees. For a couple of hours during the night the sky drizzled miserably, and the ground was covered with slimy clay, which caused some anxiety. But those magnificent men went constantly forward through teeming blackness towards the assembly point. And presently the sky cleared, and the rain stopped. One grand battalion after another passed well on. The early hours were only as noisy as normal on this wild battle front. Exactly three minutes before time to go over the Germans sent up one brilliant red flare on the right. A line of waiting men had been seen by some German group waiting in shell-holes. But the discovery was far too late. Three minutes later there descended on them a deluge such as they had never experienced before. A line of fixed bayonets swept out from the shell-holes through the ragged shreds of Glencorse Wood and down the slopes towards Hanebeek.

News has just arived that the whole line is sweeping across the crater field exactly as planned. It has already advanced 700 yards through a difficult marsh, which is probably the most formidable obstacle in attack.

8.10 a.m.: News has arrived that the line is stil advancing more than a thousand yards across country. German prisoners are already streaming past. They are shaken men for the most part, who so far have shown little fight, except in one or two of their concrete blockhouses, and in a sunken road through Glencorse Wood. About 50 Germans were killed in the sunken road which a garrison had bombed out from dugouts.

11 o'clock: There was heavy fighting for the last stages of the great assault. Certain parts of the line thinned by the enemy's fire were deliberately held back by the commanders in consultation till suport could be obtained from the other Australians on the flank. Then they pushed on and fought their way to positions nearly one mile from the start. At the moment of writing the whole line is waiting for a counter-attack, which is already glowering. How they came through that supreme test official news wil probably already have informed Australia. Five hundred Germans have already been captured by the Australians. More have been killed, and others are still coming in. Anzac House is in the hands of Australians. At least this can be said, that if the ridge can be held these men wil hold it.

MESSAGE TO AUSTRALIAN LABOUR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.

The Premier of New South Wales, Mr. W. A. Holman, at Washington, had a lengthy conference with Labour leaders, and exchanged notes on Labour and politics in the United States and in Australia. Mr. Holman briefly addressed a convention of Government employees' unions.

Mr. Holman obtained from Mr. Gompers (president of the Federation of Labour) the following message for Australia:—

"I would like to remind Australians that the German Socialist and Labour organisations are tainted with the doctrine of national superiority and the necessity for German supremacy. A long experience of international Labour has convinced me that many German Labour leaders are suborned by their Government. German Labour attempted to sow the principles of internationalism in other countries, and proposed to enforce disarmament by means of a general strike; but though they preached the doctrine, and hoped that the French and British organisations would carry it out, German Labour in 1914 showed that it was ready to fight for the goal of national domination. It was a piece of treachery which failed. German organised Labour was shown to be merely the tool of the Government."

Mr. Gompers added: "Well, boys of New South Waes and of Australia we are all anti-militarists, but we have to fight together now against German militarism to secure the peaceful future of humanity."

OPINION IN GERMANY.

An Amsterdam message says that the German Socialist paper "Vorwaerts" states that a manifesto has been circulated throughout Germany, saying:—"Citizens, the Fatherland is in peril, in worse peril than in 1914. The enemy to-day is working in our midst."

"Vorwaerts" comments that the persons responsible for the manifesto want war against their own people. Let them have it. But the Reichstag must take care that nothing will interfere with the defence of the people against the agitators of civil war.

A notable article in the "Munchener Neuste Nachrichten" says that Germany still holds Belgium firmly and this fact must be the starting point of negotiations. Belgium cannot be considered separately but must be settled with all other war problems. Germany is ready to renounce her territorial and economic conquests if her enemies are ready to do likewise. As Belgium specially interests Britain Germany would be willing to restore Belgium's independence under guarantees for neutrality and the rights of her various nationalities.

The article, which is attracting much attention, is understood to represent the official view.

GERMAN EMPEROR.

Advices received from Berne state that the German Emperor has left Budapest for Sofia. It is understood the object of his visit is to smooth difficulties between the Central Powers and Bulgaria, arising from the latter's refusal to grant further military aid. The talk by the Central Powers of annexations has alarmed the Bulgarians.

FEELING IN ARGENTINE.

A message from Buenos Aires states that thousands enthusiastically welcomed the cruiser Glasgow. Cordial speeches were made, and the city was beflagged.

PRICES FOR HEMP.

The British Army Council has fixed maximum prices for New Zealand hemp and sisal fibre in order to secure for farmers binder twine at a reasonable price.

THE STRIKE

MORE COAL MINES TO WORK

GOVERNMENT CONTROL

HOPES OF SETTLEMENT

Although State Ministers sat in Cabinet both morning and afternoon yesterday, the Acting Premier declined to make any statement on the strike position last night.

"There is nothing to report," said Mr. Fuller. "There will be another meeting of the Cabinet to-morrow, but there will still be nothing to report after that."

One Minister admitted that they had been "struggling with the coal question," but he would give no further information.

Members of the executive of the Miners' Federation were equally reticent.

It is stated in well-informed circles, however, that, following upon further deliberation last night, an important announcement, having a vital bearing on the position of the coal miners and the waterside workers, may be expected to-night.

There is a general impression that a number of additional mines will be working next week.

The despatch of volunteer labour to selected collieries is still going on.

It is believed that the miners are negotiating for the withdrawal of the discretionary power given to mine managers (now Government servants) to decide who shall and shall not be employed.

The Government is determined not to give way on this point.

The Sunday gas restrictions have been modified.

COAL MINES.

150 MINERS FOR RICHMOND MAIN.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Advice was received to-day that 150 miners who left Victoria early this week have arrived at Richmond Main colliery in New South Wales, and have begun to get out coal for the Victorian Government.

OLD EMPLOYEES DISSATISFIED

CATHERINE HILL BAY, Friday.

Old employees of Wallarah colliery are outwardly displaying every confidence in the federation officials, but there is an undercurrent of dissatisfaction at the slowly-moving efforts of the executive to bring about the settlement that all are anxiously awaiting. Men are disappointed at the futile efforts of their leaders to effect a settlement, and they now recognise that the matter should have been settled by secret ballot several weeks ago, instead of allowing the trouble to drag on indefinitely. To be able to return to their old positions on the same conditions that they enjoyed at the commencement of the strike seems most improbable, when a settlement is brought about. To have come out in sympathy with other unions, and now to be left out is very humiliating.

WATERSIDE WORKERS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Mr. Justice Higgins, in the Arbitration Court to-day, reserved judgment in the case of the application for the de-registration of the Waterside Workers' Federation. He intimated that he would probably give his decision on Monday.

TEXTILE WORKERS.

EMPLOYERS TERMS OF RE-EMPLOYMENT.

Mr. M'Kenzie, secretary to the Textile Workers' Union, said yesterday that he had a copy of the form of application, which certain firms demanded should be signed by members of his union. These employees had been rendered idle as the result of the industrial upheaval, and they had been requested to sign the forms before being re-employed. This was tantamount to a gross injustice. Although his organisation had not been deregistered, employees were asked to sign an application for re-employment, containing the following particulars:—"The employee shall not oppose any application for de-registration of the General Textile Workers' Union of New South Wales Industrial Union of Employees, and shall resign his membership thereof, or of any other industrial union, State or Federal, if any, when called upon by the employer so to do. The employee shall, when called upon, join and support such new union as the employer shall approve." Continuing, he said, if members were compelled to resign from their union they would then have no locus standi to apply to the Federal or State Court to better their conditions. It also meant that the employee would be throwing away his freedom.

COAL STOCKS.

The Coal Board, at its meeting held yesterday, decided to extend the time during which holders of stocks of coal and coke exceeding 5 tons should be permitted to use restricted supplies of same from midnight on Sunday, 23, to Sunday, 30th inst.

MORE TRAINS.

There will be practically no alteration in the tram services to-day and to-morrow, as compared with last Saturday and Sunday.

Important alterations and improvements, however, are announced with regard to the train serivce on the Western line, as advertised.

DEREGISTRATION.

DISCUSSION IN SENATE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the Senate this morning the leader of the Opposition, Senator Gardiner, moved that the regulation under the War Precautions Act giving power for the de-registration of unions whose members since the making of the regulation ceased work should be disallowed. He stated that the regulation was the result of an endeavour by the Government and the Chambers of Commerce and Manufactures to break up unionism.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce): The plot to break up unionism was hatched in the Trades Halls of Sydney and Melbourne.

Senator Gardiner said that the effect of the regulation would be to override the Arbitration Court.

The Vice-President of the Executive Council, Senator Millen, charged the leaders of the Opposition with having led the men to fight constituted authority.

Senator Gardiner: If the Minister says we led the men it is a lie.

Senator Millen said that Senator Gardiner did not mean what he was saying. Had not he (Senator Gardiner) said in the Senate recently that the strikers were as solid as ever. Now that Senator Gardiner recognised his claims to leadership were being undermined by those he has misled he was still endeavouring to mislead them. There could only be one course where national safety was concerned; men must remember that they could not enjoy the privileges of arbitration without observing its responsibilities. There had been a deliberate attempt on the part of those who led the strike to challenge constitutional government, and he regretted that the regulation had not been issued earlier, as in that case many unions would have been restrained from striking.

The motion was negatived on a division by 16 to 9.

An order under the War Precautions Act was published in a special Commonwealth "Gazette" to-night, cancelling the preference clause in the industrial agreement between the Storemen and Packers' Union and the Vacuum Oil Company Proprietary, Ltd., in Sydney, and the Federated Ship Painters and Dockers' Union of Australia and employers in both Melbourne and Sydney.

SUNDAY GAS.

RESTRICTIONS MODIFIED.

The concessions made by the Gas Emergency Board in regard to the use of gas to-morrow include permission for consumption of that supplied by the Australian Gas Light Company, Ltd., in private houses and boarding-houses between the hours of 7 a.m. and 1 p.m. The other concessions are in several instances, more liberal than were those for last Sunday. Mr. Spencer Woodham, secretary to the Board, yesterday stated that the following alterations in the restrictions on the use of gas supplied by the various companies had been made for to-morrow:—

Australian Gas Light Company.—Gas may be used in private houses and boarding-houses between the hours of 7 a.m. and 1 p.m., and between 5 p.m. and 10.30 p.m.

North Shore Gas Company.—Gas may be used in hotels, restaurants, shops, private houses, and boarding-houses between the hours of 7 a.m. and 1 p.m., and 5 p.m. and 10.30 p.m.

Manly Gas Company.—Gas may be used in private houses and boarding-houses (these being the only places affected by the previous notifications made by the Board) throughout the day with but one intermission of the three hours between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Newcastle Gas and Coke Company.—Gas may be used in hotels, restaurants, and shops, private houses, and boarding-houses throughout the day, with but one intermission of the three hours between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Waratah Municipal Gas Works.—Gas may be used in hotels, restaurants, shops, boarding-houses, and private houses throughout the day, with but one intermission of the three hours between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.

The Board also gave consideration to many requests from the clergy and others for the use of gas in churches to-morrow night, and it decided to allow the use of gas for religious purposes.

"GREATEST DEFEAT."

APPEAL TO THE MODERATES.

"The present industrial upheaval can only be regarded as a calamity, and its unfortunate result, entailing as it does the sacrifice of good jobs by men with as true hearts as ever beat beneath a worker's coat, will always be remembered as the greatest defeat organised labour has been called upon to endure in this country," says the official organ of the New South Wales Federated Baking and Milling Employees. Continuing, it says that it had been stated that never were men worse led than in the 1917 railway strike. But this was only part of the cause. The original difficulty was the weak pretext upon which the strike was formulated, and they did not hesitate to say that the card system, even if it were as dangerous as it was alleged to be, was an altogether insufficient reason to cast their country into the throes of an industrial upheaval at a time when every ounce of energy should be devoted towards securing the maximum of production, and so lending much-needed assistance to the carrying on of the war. The strike leaders must have known, and in fact, did know, that a defeat could not be avoided. But instead of manfully acknowledging the hopelessness of continuing the contest these incapable leaders for five weeks daily assured the men that victory was rapidly coming nearer to realisation. Little wonder that the men showed resentment when acquainted with the true position of affairs. Let the unions, with their sadly-depleted membership, arise, and in their anger demand that those of their leaders who acted against the best interest of the men, whether thoughtlessly or with intent, be driven out of office and their places taken by seasoned men, who knew something of the early day struggles of the movement, and who would not be likely to counsel a course which could only spell defeat, and shake the foundation of the union movement, as was now the case. Let the moderates of the different organisations attend the meetings, with unfailing regularity, and show a little of the organising ability displayed by the extremist section, which every union was cursed with. If the strike but produced such a result posterity would have to admit that it had not been an unmixed evil. They were not downhearted, but were learning as they lived.

NATIONAL SERVICE BUREAU.

The National Service Bureau, Permanent Trustee-buildings, 25 O'Connell-street, was yesterday engaged chiefly in the enrolment of men for Abermain Colliery, and for Aberdare Extended, for which 400 men are required. Abermain started sending out coal yesterday. Aberdare Extended, it is anticipated, will be doing similarly early next week. Selections for both collieries yesterday were officially regarded as satisfactory.

The Government has decided to open one of the South Coast mines, for which men are required as quickly as possible.

About 20 strong labouring men are required for shovelling small coal at one of the Lithgow collieries. Selections for this team will be made at 11 o'clock this morning.

There is still need for seamen, firemen, and other workers, in connection with the maintenance of the shipping services.

PORT KEMBLA'S MAILS.

Inquiries made at the General Post Office in response to numerous correspondents elicited the information that the mails which were being carried on the lost steamer, Port Kembla, left Sydney on September 7. A detailed statement of the mails which are presumably lost with the ship is being prepared, but is not yet available. It cannot yet be stated when the mails sent from Sydney closed at the G.P.O.; but it is definitely known that all the mail bags left Sydney by train for Melbourne on September 7, and were there transhipped aboard the Port Kembla.

OFFICIAL INQUIRY.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

It was announced in the House of Representatives that an inquiry will be opened at Wellington on Wednesday next into the loss of the Port Kembla before Mr. Riddell, police magistrate, Captain Neville, and Dr. Maclaurin.

LAWN TENNIS PLAYERS AND THE WAR.

A LETTER FROM AMERICA.

Following is a copy of a letter received by Mr. Thomas H. Hicks, hon. secretary of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australasia, from Mr. George T. Adee, president of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association:—

"I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of July 3, advising me of a resolution passed at the annual meeting of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australasia, expressing the appreciation of your association of the action taken by the United States National Lawn Tennis Association at its annual meeting on February 9, 1917, endorsing the action of President Wilson in severing diplomatic relations with the German Empire, and pledging our utmost support in the maintenance of American rights against lawless aggression. On behalf of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, I wish to express to you and to your association, our thanks and appreciation of the resolution passed by your association. We consider it an honour to be allied with the British Empire, France, and the other Allied nations in defence of democracy and the rights of nations and, with you, we hope the result may be to bring a lasting peace nearer; and also the time when international lawn tennis contests may be resumed. It is a great satisfaction to the lawn tennis players of America to follow the proud record in the war of the lawn tennis players of the British Empire and France, and it is a source of pride to us that of the men ranked as our first ten players in 1916, all but one are to-day in the service of the Government; and that one is an engineer in charge of a plant manufacturing chemicals used in the production of explosives."

WRECKED NERONG.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

When the steamer Nerong was in distress off Norah Head on Wednesday morning, the lighthouse-keeper had to send a messenger, who walked to Wyee, to telegraph the report to the Navigation Departments in Sydney and Newcastle. Through the telephone wires being down, and better means of transit not being available at Norah Head, a deplorable delay of several hours took place. If the facilities had been up to date the report about the disabled Nerong should have been in Newcastle before midday, and the relief steamers could have rescued the survivors early in the afternoon, instead of cruising around in the darkness and not sighting them till 2 o'clock the following morning.

FEDERAL SESSION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the House of Representatives this morning Mr. Fowler (W.A.) asked the Prime Minister had he seen the cabled information that a person of the name of Holman had taken on himself to represent Australia abroad; that he had been telling the people of the United States that it was their duty to carry on the war to a finish? Would he inquire as to whether this was the same politician, who, a few months ago, prior to the last State elections, in order to save his political hide, entered into an agreement to oppose the introduction of conscription in Australia?

Mr. Hughes said that no one had authority to represent Australia in regard to this or any other matter; the only ones who could speak were those who had the authority of Parliament behind them. Mr. Holman had not that authority. He had read an extract of Mr. Holman's speech, in which he had said we were going to fight to a victorious finish. They had all been guilty of indiscretions at some time or other, and after luncheon speeches could be regarded as mere peccadilloes. He apprehended that a little discount would be made here of Mr. Holman's observations, and, after making that discount, there was a very little in the speech that exception could be taken to.

In reply to Mr. Tudor, who asked whether it was a fact that the hold in which the explosion was alleged to have occurred in the steamer Port Kembla, and which caused the sinking of the vessel, was loaded by volunteer labour,

The Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, said that he was quite unable to say whether it was an internal explosion which had caused the loss of the Port Kembla, or whether it was an accident of another kind. He would like to say that three vessels had disappeared from this coast quite recently, and two of them had not been loaded by volunteer labour. According to the principle of deductive reasoning, it appeared obvious that volunteer labour was not concerned in the sinking of the Port Kembla.

Mr. Piggott (New South Wales) asked whether the Prime Minister had noticed that the price of cornsacks was now higher than before the removal of the 10 per cent. duty.

Mr. Hughes said that he was quite sure there was no exploitation. The prices were governed by the jute market in Calcutta. The Government had looked into the matter very carefully, and it was wrong to say that because of the high prices people were being exploited. The Government was watching this with a most vigilant eye, and would take steps to see that the farmers were not hampered in any way. The Government could not control the jute market in Calcutta owing to the operations of the war. It was probable that they would get no bags at all.

In reply to Mr. Riley (New South Wales), the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) stated that he had recommended the release of the aged man who had been sentenced in Sydney, and had asked that the relations of the man be asked to take him back to Western Australia.

On the motion of the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes), the following members of the House of Representatives were appointed to the Public Works Committee:—Mr. Gregory (W.A.), Mr. Mahony (N.S.W.), Mr. Sampson (Vic.), Mr. Laird Smith (Tas.), Mr. Sinclair (Q.), and Mr. Matthews (Vic.). The following members to the Public Accounts Committee:—Mr. Atkinson (Tas.), Mr. Catts (N.S.W.), Mr. Fenton (Vic.), Mr. Charlton (N.S.W.), Mr. Poynton (S.A.), and Mr. Thomson (N.S.W.).

The Minister for Works and Railways (Mr. Watt) stated that he did not intend to refer to the Public Works Committee and works at Port Stephens this session.

In introducing a resolution for Supply the Treasurer (Sir John Forrest) said that the amount they were asking for—£3,487,200—would carry them on till the end of the year. The actual transactions for the two months of the present financial year showed that their receipts had been, from all sources, £4,285,327, as against £4,333,214 for the corresponding two months of the previous financial year. The total expenditure for the two months had been £4,525,645, as against £2,388,782. He did not wish members to take the expenditure for the two months as a criterion for the whole of the year. In war loan expenditure this year they had paid away in the months of July and August, £10,285,713, an increase of £3,002,217; but this year's amount included payment to Great Britain for Australian troops in France. Under the agreement entered into by the Government with the Governments of the States they had to provide certain sums, and the Commonwealth Government had undertaken to find £6,940,000. He could assure them that the Government would find this money.

Mr. Orchard (N.S.W.) made a strong appeal for the Government to relieve the first Anzac Division, which had been engaged in fighting for about three years.

The resolution was agreed to, and a bill to give effect to it passed. The House adjourned till Monday.

SENATE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

In the Senate to-day the Vice-President of the Executive Council, Senator Mullen, moved the second reading of the bill to impose a tax on bachelors. The debate was adjourned, and the House at 3.15 p.m. rose till Tuesday.

Senator Millen expressed the hope that business would be concluded by Wednesday next.

BAPTIST CONFERENCE.

The annual conference of the Baptist Union of New South Wales was continued at the Bathurst-street church yesterday.

The day was chiefly devoted to home mission work, upon which reports were submitted as to the present position by Mr. W. Ardill, and as to future fields by the Rev. A. J. Waldock, superintendent. Recommendations in the report that schemes for extending the work be devised by the central authorities in conjunction with local bodies were adopted.

The conference also decided upon the creation of a brotherhood. Those who advocated the scheme urged strongly that the activities of the brotherhood should not be restricted to the churches with which the members were connected, but should be general throughout the union.

Mr. Buckingham, in an appeal for the purchase of church sites, called for £250, which he offered to subsidise pound for pound. The response was £312, and Mr. Buckingham agreed to carry the subsidy to that extent. The fund was inaugurated, amidst cheers, with £624.

Conference gave consideration to a recommendation of the jubilee committee to raise £10,000 for the endowment of a Baptist college. It was explained that there was £5000 in sight. Mr. White suggested that the proposed fund and that of the Baptist house fund should be amalgamated, and the amount to be raised be at least £10,000. The conference agreed that the amount should be raised as the minimum for the combined purpose of church house and college.

The home mission committee recommended the employment of deaconesses as suitable workers offered and resources permitted, under the control of the ladies' auxiliaries; that the ladies' auxiliary include ministers' wives and two lady representatives from each pastorate within the metropolitan area; and that the salary of the deaconesses be £100 per year each. The recommendation was adopted.

The Rev. A. J. Waldock was unanimously re-elected home mission superintendent.

Last night a home mission demonstration was held in the Bathurst-street church.

LATE GERMAN POSSESSIONS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The statement made by the Premier of New South Wales (Mr. Holman) in New York, in which he declared that Australia would retain Northern New Guinea, and would not allow Germany to regain a footing there, was brought under the notice of the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) to-day. He said that the attitude of the Commonwealth Government was discussed and settled by the Commonwealth Government in 1916, and had been approved by the subsequent Administration and also by the British Government. He declined to state what that policy was. It was not an opportune time to make an announcement.

DEATH OF MR. T. B. WILKINSON.

Mr. T. B. Wilkinson, a director of the Australian Woollen Mills, Ltd., died on Thursday at Berthong Station, near Cootamundra, after a short illness. Mr. Wilkinson left Sydney in good health a few days ago to spend a short holiday with Mr. Gibbs, the owner of Berthong Station.

The deceased resided at Dalmeny, Ben Boyd-road, Neutral Bay, and was in his 81st year. He was a native of Huddersfield, Yorkshire, and came to Sydney 40 years ago. He was instrumental in starting the Australian Woollen Mills, Ltd., and was also one of the founders and directors of the Metropolitan Knitting and Hosiery Company. He was one of the first men to enrol in the New South Wales Lancer Regiment. He leaves a widow, two sons, and two daughters. One of his sons, Mr. H. L. Wilkinson, was associated with him in his York-street business, and the other, Mr. Arthur C. Wilkinson, is manager of the Australian Woollen Mills. The daughters of the deceased are Mrs. Grundy, of Adelaide, and Miss Adeline Wilkinson.

The funeral will take place at Waverley Cemetery this afternoon.

FIXING PRICES.

METHYLATED SPIRITS.

The report of the Necessary Commodities Commission inspector, Mr. Abigail, which was read yesterday afternoon when the commission met to fix the wholesale and retail price of methylated spirits showed that some of the retailers had been making a profit of over 100 per cent.

It was pointed out in the report that the whole of the methylated spirits sold in Australia and New Zealand is manufactured by the Colonial Sugar Refining Company in Sydney. The maximum selling price charged by the company to the two distributing firms was 1s 3½d per gallon in bulk and 1s 7½d per gallon in tins and cases. These prices had not been increased during the past 12 months. Although 2s 3d per gallon was the highest wholesale selling price by the single case, and large lots were much cheaper, retailers had been charging 6d to 8d per pint.

The President, Mr. Justice Edmunds, said that while the decision in regard to the wholesale price would be reserved, the commission would recommend the issue of a proclamation fixing the retail price at 4½d per reputed pint, 8½d per reputed quart (six to the gallon), measured pint 6d, measured quart 1s; to persons bringing their own containers, 10d per quart.

CHEESE.

The commission had under consideration the price of cheese.

The President said that the commission would agree to a flat wholesale rate of 11½d per lb, irrespective of size and quality, as asked, instead of varying prices up to 1s 3d per lb. The variation of the proclamation would come into operation on Monday next.

MAIZE.

The President said that the selling agents thought that maize did not come within the definition of a necessary commodity, and they had been selling in excess of 3s 6d per bushel, which was the price on August 1.

In reply to a question, the President said the proclamation price would not be retrospective.

Several of the selling agents expressed the wish that the present price should be left as it is—at 4s 6d.

The President: We will do that. In regard to the general proclamation of August 9, it rests entirely with the Attorney-General whether that proclamation is to be enforced by prosecutions for breaches on your part. I do not think it is likely that there will be any prosecutions. But you must get the authority of the Attorney-General to sell up to 4s 6d. It will then be open to you to come before the commission with any application you think necessary in connection with the fixing of the selling price of maize.

COLEDALE OUTRAGE.

ACCUSED REMANDED.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

Frederick Lowden (27) and James M'Enaney (34), natives of England, on remand, appeared at the Police Court to-day before Mr. A. O. Edwards, S.M. They were charged with shooting with intent to murder Alfred Vincent Green on the night of August 25 whilst he was engaged on the work of firing on a train from Sydney to Nowra. The court was crowded. Mr. Bathgate appeared for the Crown, and Mr. A. A. Lysaght defended.

Mr. Bathgate applied for a further remand, Green being still in hospital.

Mr. Lysaght submitted that some evidence must be tendered before a remand could be granted. The Court would not remand on something said from the bar table. There must be some evidence on oath before the Court before an adjournment could be granted.

His Worship granted a remand till October 10, bail as before £1500 each.

STRIKE DISTURBANCES AND DEPORTATION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes), in reply to a question, said that the Government was considering the question of deporting the leaders of the recent strike disturbances in Melbourne.

FATAL MOTOR CAR ACCIDENT.

DELEGATE, Friday.

A shocking motor car accident attended with a fatal result occurred on the Orbost to Delegate road yesterday afternoon. The driver, Robert O'Brien, was bringing a party from Orbost, about 25 miles from Delegate, and at an awkward pinch known as Devil's Elbow the car refused to pull up. To avoid going over the mountain the driver backed into the bank, and the impact was sufficient to turn the car over. All the occupants were thrown out, and Miss Kate Cameron, of Bendoc, was killed instantly, her neck being broken. Joseph Bartley, of Delegate, injured a collar bone. Mrs. P. Tracey, of Bombala, had ribs fractured, and Mr. P. Tracey and O'Brien were severely shaken. O'Brien walked several miles to a telephone almost in a state of collapse. Miss Cameron was a member of an old and highly respected family in this district.

LATE MR. I. J. SKY.

Mr. Ivo James Sky, who died recently, was well known to many city and country people interested in the live-stock trade. He entered the employ of Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Ltd., as a junior in 1898, and remained on the staff of their stock department until 1914, when he accepted an appointment with Messrs. John Bridge and Co., Ltd., as one of their live-stock auctioneers, and continued with them until his death. He left a widow and four young children.

MARKETS FOR FRUITS AND JAM.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) has been endeavouring to relieve the critical situation in the fruit industry by finding a market for fruit and jams. Mr. Hughes has been successful in disposing of 12,000,000lb of jam at 5½d to Great Britain out of a total of 50,000,000lb offered, and is hopeful of effecting a sale of the balance to the United States Government.

PAPER MANUFACTURE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

When the Rock Phosphate and Wood Pulp Bounty Bill was going through the Senate the Assistant Minister, Senator Russell, stated that efforts to make paper in Australia from Australian wood pulp had been a failure. It was hoped, however, that experiments at the Science Bureau would eventually lead to the development of the paper industry in Australia.

RECRUITING.

The chairman of the State Recruiting Committee, Professor Macintyre, stated yesterday that he would like, through the Press, to appeal to local recruiting committees throughout the State to concentrate once more upon the great task which lay before us in supplying the necessary reinforcements to the men at the front. Though matters connected with the recent strike had not yet reached a complete settlement, still, with things nearly normal, the community might recover a true sense of proportion. The industrial upheaval had undoubtedly affected the recruiting, and it ought to be realised that the one basic principle for Australia was that the necessary reinforcements must be supplied. No one possessing any spark of loyalty, but would grant that Australia could not be allowed to fade out of the war, and that was what it meant if the men did not respond to the present call. Whatever happened, and whatever means were necessary, that blot must never be allowed to stain the fair name won for Australia at so great a cost.

STIMULATING RECRUITING.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Director-General of Recruiting (Mr. Mackinnon, M.L.A.) stated to-day that the Federal Recruiting Committee at a meeting last evening had formulated a number of recommendations designed to stimulate recruiting. The general effect of the recommendations was to increase the pay of soldiers and of allowances to dependents, and to continue to secure more satisfactory arrangements with regard to the continuation of allowances in the case of men reported as missing, and eventually discovered to be dead. At present allowances ceased four months after the day on which the man was reported to be missing. It was hoped that the allowances would be extended until the man was finally reported killed.

Two recruiting meetings were held in the city yesterday—one in Martin-place, the other in Campbell-street, near the Haymarket. Six men volunteered, and six others promised to enlist.

This evening, at 8, Miss Grace Scobie and Sergeant O'Sullivan will address a recruiting meeting on the Manly Corso. The meeting at Wollongong to-night will be addressed by Warrant Officer Blake and Corporal Macnamara.

The following meetings will be held to-morrow:—Domain, 2.30 p.m.: Lieutenant Litchfield, Sergeant O'Sullivan, Trooper White, Sergeant Hamilton, Sergeant Browne.

North Sydney Reserve, 4 p.m.: Sergeant Keesing, Sapper Hunt.

Ashfield Park, 3 p.m.: Captain Coulter, Miss Grace Scobie.

Manly, South Steyne Bandstand, 4 p.m.: Lieutenant Railton.

Corner George and Bathurst streets, 7.30 p.m.: Lieutenant Killeen, Sergeant O'Sullivan, Private Miller, Sergeant Browne.

COOMA, Friday.

Lieutenant H. S. Williams and Sergeant Bohm, of the Sportsmen's Unit, who are conducting a recruiting tour in the southern district, visited Cooma and held a meeting, where they were assisted by Warrant Officer Hughes and Sergeant Calthorpe. Two recruits came forward, making three for the week.

A "BLACK" WAGGON WHEEL

UNION DEREGISTERED.

Application was made before Judge Rolin in the Industrial Court yesterday for the cancellation of the registration of the Amalgamated Coachmakers', Railway Car, Waggon Makers', and Wheelwrights' Society on the ground that the union had instigated and taken part in a strike at the works of the West Wheel Company, Ltd. Mr. Stinson (Messrs. Pigott and Stinson) appeared on behalf of the applicants, the West Wheel Company, Ltd. Mr. Henwood represented the union.

Affidavits showed that on August 22 the firm received for repairs a wheel of a motor lorry belonging to the Harbour Trust Commissioners. The workman first asked to do the job refused, saying that instructions had been received from the secretary of the union not to do the work, on the ground that the wheel was "black." Two men left the shop sooner than touch the work, and after a third man had been told to do it one of the men rang a bell, and all the journeymen, nine in number, walked out.

Mr. Henwood read an affidavit by the secretary of the union denying that the union had called the men out, and stating further that the man who first refused to do the work was not a member of the union at all.

His Honor said that if the union really had nothing to do with this they might have told the men to go back, but they did nothing.

Mr. Henwood submitted that a fine, at any rate, would meet the case.

Judge Rolin said the fact that the men had refused the job because, as one of them said, it would be helping the Government, was an instance of the revolutionary nature of the strike. Still, comparatively few men were involved, and suspension might meet the case.

Mr. Stinson said this was not an isolated case. The Railway Commissioners, he understood, had intended to apply for cancellation on the ground that the men on the railways had struck. He put in an affidavit in support of this.

Mr. Henwood said that in that event he would have asked that the railway men be treated as a separate section, and that if they were found guilty the road men should not be punished with them. The two sections were really distinct, and worked under separate awards.

His Honor said he could not believe the contention that the strike was not the doing of the union. He might have paid attention to professions of repentance on the part of the union if the members of the union had met and got rid of their secretary and officials. Because the union struck, not only at these small works, but at the railway shops, he ordered the cancellation.

REMARKABLE LIBEL ACTION.

CAPETOWN, Sept. 20.

The hearing of a remarkable libel action terminated in Pretoria to-day. It arose out of the late rebellion. The Prime Minister, General Botha, sued Senator Wolmarans (Nationalist) for £5000 damages for saying that he (General Botha) was steeped to the lips in blood of his countrymen.

The defendant counter-claimed for the same amount for alleged statements reflecting upon his conduct during the Anglo-Boer war.

Both parties ultimately withdrew the imputations, Senator Wolmarans paying costs.

AMERICAN COPPER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.

The United States has decided to fix the price of copper.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

"You're in Love" is drawing packed audiences at Her Majesty's, where the usual matinee is notified for Wednesday. PALACE.—"LOOK WHO'S HERE."

Jack Waller and Sid James, the entertainers, who are producing such good musical programmes at the Palace Theatre, find business so good that they have decided to transfer the show to the Theatre Royal, on Saturday next. The show has now held the boards at the Palace for 14 weeks, and the management has had no cause to complain of the business resulting—despite the strike has been at its height. The present programme will be played till Friday night next. The plan for the Theatre Royal season will open at Paling's on Monday next.

WILLIAM ANDERSON'S COMPANY.

Messrs. Wirth Brothers announce that their Hippodrome Theatre will be the scene of the reappearance after a lapse of some years of William Anderson's well-known dramatic organisation, which will open there next Saturday night with an elaborate revival of "Robbery Under Arms," the late Alfred Dampier's drama, founded upon Rolf Boldrewood's famous novel.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

This afternoon (2.30) and evening the bright new entertainment at the Tivoli Theatre will doubtless continue to attract large audiences with Ruth Budd in her piquant poses on the ropes and rings, where she smiles and sings. Lilyan and Martha Boggs in their novel dances, Miss Amy Murphy in her songs at the piano, the Creole Fashion Plate, Edna Foster and Company, Joe Reed, Thurber and Thurber, and Nelusco and Hurley are all in the programme.

De Groen's orchestra plays at the evening sessions.

WEST'S OLYMPIA.

The matinee at West's "Olympia" to-day will commence at 2.30. This evening the principal feature will be "The Flame of the Yukon," in which Dorothy Dalton appears. AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

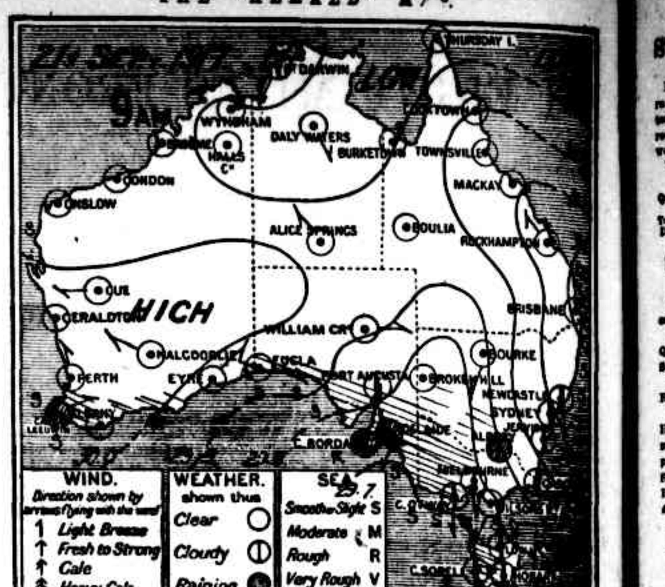
THE "HERALD" MAP.



The high pressure over the Tasman Sea has further increased in intensity, and is now centred to the NE of Auckland, the highest barometric reading being 30.64 inches.

The Antarctic disturbance, owing to the stagnation of the "high," has not made any appreciable advance eastward. The centre is at present between Adelaide and Hobart, while the northern portion extends as far as the southern districts of Queensland.

A slight monsoonal depression is in evidence over the extreme northern parts of the Continent, and a new "high" has entered the western State.

Fine and mild weather may be expected over the eastern districts for the present, but unsettled conditions, with some rain and thunderstorms, may be expected in the west and should extend generally during the next 24 hours.

CONSERVATORIUM OF MUSIC.

At the Conservatorium at 3 o'clock to-day the director's concert will comprise the "Magnificat in D" of Bach by the Conservatorium select choir and orchestra, under Henri Verbrugghen. The soloists will be Rosa Alba, Dulcie Hurtaide, Dorothy Toppin, and Marjorie Beeby, and J. Philip Wilson and Roy Allen. The Conservatorium orchestra will also play the Mozart Symphony in G Minor and the "Leonora No. 3."

On Wednesday next, at 7.45, at the director's seventeenth lecture-concert, the Verbrugghen string quartet will render Alfred Hill's Quintet in E Flat for piano, strings, and eight solo voices, with Miss Myrtle Meggy at the piano. The plans for these concerts are at Paling's.

BOXING.

Another tournament programme will be staged at the Stadium to-night.

SOLDIERS' PARCELS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A number of parcels addressed to soldiers at the front containing food and clothing of various kinds, have been returned to Australia because the addressees could not be found, and many thousands are lying in stores in Australia because the senders cannot be traced. The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) stated to-day that he had given instructions for a cable message to be sent to England that no more undelivered parcels should be sent back to Australia until the difficulty was overcome at this end. The Postmaster-General (Mr. Webster) would consider whether special postal regulations could meet the situation, or whether a War Precautions regulation would be necessary to override the postal law which at present governed the operations of the Postal Department.

ASSISTANT TEACHERS.

The second annual conference in connection with the New South Wales Public School Assistant Teachers' Association will take place in the King's Hall, Hunter-street, to-day. It will be opened at 10 a.m., by the Minister for Education, Mr. James.

AFTER-WAR PROBLEMS.

THROUGH LABOUR'S EYES.

In considering the Labour view it is well not to confine ourselves to local illustrations. Australia is far removed from the seat of hostilities. There are many here, and not among the workers only, who seem even now, after three years of conflict, not to realise that the world is at war. In Europe it is different. In England the bursting bombs, from enemy aircraft, and the roll of the distant guns on the plains of Flanders are a constant reminder that the Empire is engaged in a death struggle. Labour in England knows much better than Labour in Australia what war means. And what has Labour done there? As a recent writer says, "It has laid on the national altar the proceeds of generations of strivings and sacrifices, making but the simple and justifiable reservation that the things thus tendered to their country shall be restored unimpaired to them when danger has passed, for these were the means they had fashioned at tremendous cost, and trouble, with which to win betterment for themselves and theirs." They have admitted semi-skilled, unskilled, and female labour into regions hitherto the exclusive preserves of the skilled. They have agreed to work long hours, often seven days a week, and to suspend holidays in munition factories for the preservation of the State. They have worked with an enthusiasm never before known. They have willingly allowed their young men to be sent to the firing line by the million. There they have worked hours that put trade union ideals to scorn, and they have agreed to do this without a murmur. They have left their dead and received back their wounded; in reply to their losses sending forth still more men. There is scarce a working class family in the old country that is unable to point to its dead. Everywhere there has been willing sacrifice. Labour feels that it has bravely borne its share of national defence, and looks for its reward in improved after-war conditions. What does it expect?

If Mr. G. H. Roberts, M.P., now Minister for Labour in the British Cabinet, be taken as its spokesman, Labour expects henceforth a larger share in management. Particularly desirable is it, he thinks, that there should be more co-operation between the employing and employed class. Aloofness and misunderstanding have been potent contributories to industrial inefficiency. Some employers are prone to regard any approach from their workmen as an impudent interference with their business. "We intend to run our business in our own way," represents the attitude of this type. But these employers must learn that the way they run their businesses is a matter of social concern, and that they cannot regard labour as they do inanimate things. Everyone they employ is a human being instinct with feeling and aspiration and possibility like themselves. It is invariably found, this authority asserts, that workers respond to fair and reasonable treatment. By taking them into greater confidence either directly or through their accredited representatives they will become more interested and willing workers and more dignified and responsible citizens. By the establishment in every works of a committee consisting of directors and managers together with a corresponding number of workers elected by their fellows and holding regular meetings many valuable suggestions would be forthcoming, causes of friction dispelled and improved understanding ensue to the mutual advantage of the parties concerned. No student of our industrial system, this spokesman for labour urges, will claim that unfettered private enterprise has been completely successful. Rule of thumb methods are still too prevalent. Scientific organisation and the more modern mechanical appliances are not fully utilised.

Enlightened Labour opinion, however, does not claim that the workers are without fault. Yet this much may be said in extenuation that the lesser power for good or ill has rested with them, hence their responsibility is the lesser. Mr. Hartley Withers, recently financial adviser to the British Treasury and now editor of the "Economist," in a recently published book admits that a regime of specialisation "has brought to the majority a life of mechanical and monotonous toil, with little or none of the pride in the job well done, such as was enjoyed by the savage when he made his bow or caught his fish." Having regard to the uninteresting and changeless occupations referred to, it is not surprising that many sink into a state of perfunctory performance of the daily round, and an habitual yearning for the close of the working day. Moreover, many have experienced the fact that the use of machinery has not lightened their labour, though it may have increased their purchasing power. This tends to stifle ambition, weakens individuality, and tends to that restricted production which has come as the result of the policy of "go slow." Where the quest for profit is pursued without regard to the human factor the worker will consciously or unconsciously adjust output in like spirit.

After the war the output per man will need to be increased. Labour realises this, as well as Capital does. But how shall it be done? Hitherto the recruitment of industries has been very haphazard. There has been too little correlation between school life and the period of industrial training. Too often a lad enters some particular works because they are situated conveniently to his home, and but little regard is paid to his individual capacity for his newly-selected occupation, or to his individual likings. This system creates inefficients, and inefficients are dangerous. They feel, and not altogether without warrant, that they have a grievance with society. Efficient workers are more often contented workers than are their inefficient brothers. Besides efficiency and relative contentment makes for a greater output per man. As output expands the greater the wealth created, and so divisible. Hitherto the workers have not seen this very clearly, mainly because they have not been taken fully enough into the confidence of the management. In the past workers have been haunted with the nightmare that expansive output meant glutted markets, and, consequential unemployment. This dread must at all hazards be removed. The best type of worker fully realises that wages come out of the output not out of the capital of their employers, but all do not do so. Such is the outlook viewed from the standpoint of the most enlightened section of Labour.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The announcement by cable that British freights had been advanced to £10 a ton caused much stir among merchants yesterday. The advance is £4 a ton, equal to 66 2-3rds per cent. This is by weight or measurement. In some cases where measurement is taken the cost of freight to bring out a ton weight will be £20. Most goods are sold nowadays extra freight on buyer's account, so that there will be no loss in the case of merchants, but it may be different in the case of a distributor who sells to a small manufacturer or a retailer. These buyers do not want uncertainties. They ask for a straight-out quotation, and are willing to pay more in order that there may be no extras. In such cases the vendor may suffer a substantial loss. An advance in freights has been expected for some time past, but it is certain that such an advance as we have now word of was never anticipated, at least not all at once. The addition to the freight charges will add considerably to the cost of heavy goods.

A better business was done in chemicals than for the past two weeks. American caustic soda, 76-77 per cent., sold at £65, and English of the same strength at £68. English caustic, 70-72 per cent., was quoted at £66. Bi-carb. of soda, silicate of soda, and soda ash were each worth £25 a ton. A strong inquiry was made for carbide. Japanese sold at £59 a ton, a parcel of 100 tons changing hands at this figure. Bluestone was steady, Macclesfields at £75 and Japanese at £72 a ton. Freight difficulties were delaying shipments of the latter. Business in strychnine was restricted. The placing of the poison on the necessary commodities list rendered merchants shy of dealing in it, as a man might buy and find the price lowered on him.

A small parcel of No. 8 black wire sold at £50 a ton; two hundred cases of sardines, Norwegian quarters, sold at 7/9 less discount. A good demand existed for all fish. American sardines were quoted with the condition that the money must be paid in America, and that the buyer must make arrangements as to freight. A Vancouver cablegram stated that it was extremely difficult to arrange shipments of salmon. Some brands were up 5/ above opening rates.

Letters from a Japanese source stated that a boom in cotton yarn culminated at the beginning of August, and that thereafter there was a marked decline in quotations, owing to the failure of some brokers and to rumours of peace. A cablegram intimates that since the letter was written there has been a further fall. Japanese freight is most difficult, and shippers in Japan ask permission to ship not according to instructions, but whenever the freight is available, which means that some goods may arrive before they are desired.

Jute goods were quiet yesterday. Until some further word is received from Calcutta as to the September-October shipments importers will not quote those shipments. Prices are nominally unchanged, cornsacks, season's delivery, 9/6 net to rails; branbags, spot 8/4½ net; and woolpacks spot 3/10½ to 3/11 net.

S.S. ELSASS.

The Sydney Chamber of Commerce calls the attention of consignees of cargo (now stored at Honolulu) by the steamer "Elsass" to a meeting that is to be held, particulars of which appear in our business columns.

RAILWAY TRANSPORT.

The Railway Commissioners notify that window frames, fanlights, register grates, mantel-pieces, and camp ovens for transport by rail will require to be crated, and that the remainder of the articles notified yesterday must be tendered for transit early in the day, i.e., between 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. to admit of their being accepted for conveyance.

MINING.

BARRIERS LOWER.

Attention was again fairly divided between silver, lead, gold, and tin propositions on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Copper stocks were dealt in sparingly, but at much reduced prices. Hampdens and C.S.A. eased to 27/, while other concerns barely maintained late rates. Deeps moved briskly, and finished higher at 27/9; while Centrals, though failing to pass the quotation stage, manifested a marked recovery. Victorian gold enterprises came in for a little business. New Langi Logan sagged to 11/, but Cathcart Victory and Bendigo Amalgamated commanded firmer prices.

With one notable exception—that of B.H. South—the Barrier group displayed general weakness. Junction (con.) eased to 7/5, and Junction North receded to 13/9. Lower bids were called for Hills, and British declined to 32/6. South continued to harden, and rose 2/ to £9/3/. Ronpibon provided the feature of the tin group in a rise to 22/6, and stronger movements were noted also in Tongkah Compound at 10/6 and Larut at 46/.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.

Private William Rogers, 38, a guard at the German concentration camp at Holdsworthy, was arrested to-day by the Liverpool police and charged with shooting with intent to murder Private Harry Foster, 18, also a guard at the camp.

It is alleged that at breakfast this morning there was an altercation between the men, and Rogers fired his service rifle. A bullet penetrated Foster's neck, and he was taken to the camp hospital in a very weak state.

ASTONISHING vigour in all chicks hatched in the "American Standard" and "Standard Model" Incubators. In fact, the chickens fairly leap out of the shells. Truly they are America's best, and why not? when such experts as Charley Cyphers and Robert Essex put their heads together to astonish American and Australian poultry men. And they have succeeded beyond all others, and have made successful hatching of strong healthy chickens and ducklings a reality. Five shipments of these famous hatchers have arrived, and buyers are delighted, and say "No other Incubator for us after testing and proving their excellent hatching qualities for ourselves." Write for large catalogue.

The "Harris" Hatchers are still going strong and doing excellent work. Don't forget BROODY HENS are now unnecessary. 16-egg Incubators, complete, for 72/6, including regulation gear, capsule, thermometer, egg-tester, and lamp. 25-egg, 80/; 50-egg, 65/.

Brooders all sizes. Thermometers, 3/ and 4/. Capsules, all sizes, Square, Oblong, and Round. "Harris" Chicken Mixture and Egg-maker, Poultry Spice. Snuffotine, 4lb packet, 1/. Tobacco Powder, 5lb, 1/. "Harris" Roup, Cold, and Diarrhoea powder. Wart and Leg Ointment. The "Harris" Roofing Material, 78/ roll, tacks and cement free.

Try the "American Model" Head Lice Ointment, and save your chicks.

We supply purebred and dressed Poultry.

THE LINE THAT MADE THE HIT.

Years ago, when we first offered our King Calf Food, there was nothing in the way of a Calf Food that was so quickly prepared, and that did not scour. Since then there have been many imitations, but we must say we know of nothing better than

KING CALF FOOD.

It is made of carefully prepared, high-class ingredients, practically the same as infants' food, and it is only our enormous output that enables us to sell it at the price.

DO NOT FAIL TO TRY IT.

Sold in Bags, 28lb, 5/6; 1cwt, 21/.

THE TALK OF AUSTRALIA.

The phenomenal success of NEWTOWN GIANT INCUBATORS and COLONY BROODERS is the talk of the Poultry-keeping public of the Commonwealth.

Mr. E. A. Lawson, of Olinda Poultry Farm, secured from his first hatch in a 3000 Egg Newtown Giant Incubator 93 per cent. of fertile eggs.

The lowest report we have from other users is 80 per cent.

NEWTOWN BROODERS have also shown themselves to be the "perfect" brooders, many users report raising the whole of their hatching without the loss of a single chick.

Of over 300 machines sent out there is not a single complaint.

ACCOUNTANTS,
BOOKKEEPERS,
CLERKS, and all
OFFICE MEN.

Do you know what it means to you to qualify and obtain your degree as an Accountant? Have you given this question of qualification the attention it deserves from your own personal point of view?

The business of to-day demands highly-trained men to keep the records and accounts. Qualified men are in keen demand all over Australia. There never will be enough of them. STATISTICS SHOW THAT LESS THAN ONE PER CENT. OF OFFICE MEN IN AUSTRALIA ARE QUALIFIED MEN.

Golden opportunity awaits the man of ambition and pluck who is prepared to study and qualify. There is no "royal road" to success in the Commercial World, but there is a "sure road," and that lies through the Accountancy Degree Examinations. No investment of your time and money can possibly bring greater or more permanent reward than the time and money you will spend in obtaining your degree. YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO PUT THIS QUESTION ASIDE. You must decide now—or be prepared to take a "back seat," instead of doubling or trebling your salary within a few years. It is your duty to do the best for yourself and those dependent upon you.

Make up your mind now to go right into details with us.

Our advice and experience of 20 years in this work are at your service.

Call or write to-day for our 65 p.p. "Guide to Accountancy"—a most interesting and valuable statement of the whole case. Free on receipt of name and address.

FINE.
"BEST EVER."
"YOU HAVE ELIMINATED THE OBJECTIONS."
The unanimous opinion of the
NEW MASTER MODEL STENOTYPE
is fully expressed in these three lines.
From the standpoint of working results this new mechanical wonder is a marvel of efficiency.
ABSOLUTELY SILENT,
WEIGHS ONLY 4½LB,
PRINTS PLAIN TYPE FIGURES,
FOLDS THE PAPER LIKE A BOOK.

The "Master Model" is revolutionising stenographic methods and fast superseding hand systems of shorthand. The advantages of the "Machine Way in Shorthand" are more than ever made manifest by this new mechanical wonder, and there can be no question that the Stenotype is here and here to stay.

If you have not seen the "New Master Model," call and get a demonstration.

You cannot afford to let prejudice block the pathway which leads to success.

YOU MUST LEARN STENOTYPY

if you wish to keep pace with modern office requirements.

Sydney's biggest business houses are adopting the "machine way" because the Stenotype means greater efficiency with less mental and physical strain.

OUR TUITION FEES ARE AT A MINIMUM,
and the demand for Stenotypists is daily increasing.
Our advice is
COME AND SEE THE MASTER MODEL.
You will then realise why business houses are employing Stenotypists.

INSPECTION OF MEAT.

Butchers, Slaughtermen, Health Inspectors, and the public generally are informed that a Course of Instruction by Correspondence in the Inspection of Meat and of Animals has been established in connection with the Sydney Technical College. The Course will consist of two terms, and is intended to enable Inspectors, Butchers, Slaughtermen, and others living at such distances from Sydney or Newcastle as will preclude their attendance at the ordinary lecture classes to obtain instruction in this important subject. It is proposed to give from 6 to 8 Practical Demonstrations during the Course, and to hold, for this year's students only, a special Theoretical and Practical Examination in Sydney at the end of February next.

This course offers an exceptional opportunity to ambitious men engaged in the Meat Industry to improve their position and prospects, and to qualify for higher, more responsible, and better-paid positions, for which there is a large and increasing demand for properly trained and qualified men. Early application for enrolment is advised.

LADIES.
LET US SOLILOQUISE.

How is it? you ask, that Australian, African, and Canadian Manufacturers do not make a good sweet like England and America. AH! NOW WE'RE THINKING. Let us tell you. It's BECAUSE they have so many orders for the ½d and 1d lines and 1d or lollies that they have no time, and BECAUSE they don't send a representative out of the country to other countries to see WHAT'S DOING.

How long do you think your LEADING Drapers would be LEADERS if they did not send members of their staff to London and Paris yearly to get the fashions and see WHAT'S DOING? Not long. They would soon be third-raters.
